Eugene Meyer, Jr., offers to the country at least a partial solution of its money problem. This solution, however, might interfere with the profits of professional financiers and therefore probably will be rejected.

Mr. Meyer's common sense suggestion is that instead of borrowing money from the banks at six per cent., as the administration is doing now, thus encouraging usury, which the Federal reserve has practically sanctified, post-office savings banks should pay four or four and a half per cent. interest, and finance the country with the savings of tens of millions of citizens.

Hundreds of thousands now hide their savings because they trust no private banking concern. But they would trust the government savings bank. And they would restore at least five hundred millions of dollars, perhaps double that amount, to useful circulation, if the postoffice banks were properly developed.

Foreigners that now send their money abroad as fast as they make it, would deposit it at a fair rate of interest in the United States savings banks. In short, Mr. Meyer's suggestion is in every way excellent. It will probably be ignored because the government of this country just now is controlled by organized money, which hasn't the intelligence to see that anything good for the country is in the long run good for those that live off the country's prosperity.

What this nation owes to soldiers is a generous bonus, plus a piece of American soil, and the chance to start life prosperously.

Mr. Cox says that he will gratify the American soldier by giving him another chance to go abroad and get gassed whenever England, France, Italy, Rumania, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland and the other allied countries may decide that it is necessary. Very kind and thoughtful of Mr. Cox. American soldiers are advised to write and tell him what they think of his plan. Address "Mr. Cox, Candidate, Ohio."

American soldiers are not fools. They can read and understand Article 10, which Mr. Cox and Mr. Wilson have promised to stick to, word for word, letter for letter. Article 10 says that members of the league undertake to respect and preserve territorial integrity and existing political independence of the members of the league.

And furthermore, "the council shall advise the means by which this declaration shall be fulfilled."

The "council" is a foreign body in which the United States would have one vote and about as much influence as Mrs. Partington's mop had in dealing with the ocean.

"Very soon after the 4th of March, 1921, in the name of our beloved country, we will enter the League of Nations of the World," says Mr. Cox. But "we" shall not do anything of the kind. "Four million American soldiers, their mothers, their fathers and their friends," are going to see to it that America doesn't do anything to take away American sovereignty from the American people.

There are many interesting things in the news today that might be discussed, but nothing is as important or as interesting to the people of this country as Article 10 in that infamous League of War.

Here, word for word, exactly as Mr. Wilson and Mr. Cox have promised to fasten it on the American people, is the tenth Article of the league covenant which would transfer the governing power of the United States to Europe and place in the hands of a European council the right to declare war, conscript men and raise money in the United States of America.

He who doesn't know that these statements are true after he reads Article 10, is unable to read intelligently the English language plainly written.

Read it again, here is Article 10:

The members of the league undertake to respect and preserve as against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of the members of the league. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression the council shall advise the means by which the obligation shall be fulfilled.

Do you want this country to "preserve the territorial and political integrity" of all the countries as they now stand, with their interests stealing of land following the war? Do you want this nation to guarantee, with its men and money, that the swollen, top-heavy British empire shall always remain four as it is now, free from aggression from without, free to govern and dominate within? If so, vote for Mr. Cox and his League of Nations.

Do you think that this country should keep in its own hands the right to declare peace or war and reserve to itself the right to say when American soldiers shall be sent to the European trenches? If so, vote against Mr. Cox and his League of War.

Million Stickers for Candidate Kerr

A million stickers bearing the name of Frederick N. Kerr of Winchester, former selectman of that town, are being printed by Wright & Potter for use in the State primary next week.

Kerr is a candidate for the Republican nomination for State treasurer against Fred J. Burrell, who was recently repudiated by several leading Republican clubs because of his conduct in office.

Kerr has the backing of many prominent Republicans, who confidently expect to defeat Burrell for nomination. Kerr was a candidate for the nomination last year.

FREIGHTER ASHORE IN HARBOR

Crocon Strikes at High Tide While Coming In; Two Tugs Stand By

The Merchant & Miners' liner Grecian went ashore today between Long Island and the Nubble, at the entrance to Boston harbor. It was almost flood tide at the time and a few hours later the bows were entirely out of water.

The tugs Taurus and Saturn went to the ship's assistance and stood by waiting for an opportunity to float her at the next high tide.

The Grecian left Providence on Sunday for Boston to load a cargo for Norfolk and was scheduled to leave here at 1 p. m. today.

No information as to how the accident occurred was given out.

GIVES UP AUTO AT POINT OF REVOLVER

Ayer, Aug. 30.—Fred J. Lanctot, nineteen years old, of Lowell, was arraigned here today charged with stealing an automobile at the point of a gun in broad daylight in Littleton. Foster Kimball of Littleton charged that Lanctot halted him near Littleton Common as the church crowds were passing, presented a revolver at his head and ordered him from the car. Kimball got out. Scores of machines took up the chase as Lanctot sped away. In East Acton the fugitive ran the car into a stone wall and took to the woods. He was captured near Concord Reformatory. In court he said he had worked until recently in a Lowell mill.

ASK LOYAL COALITION INQUIRY

New Angle in Con-British Gold Probe Brought Up by Congressman

Washington, Aug. 30.—The Senate committee investigating campaign expenditures was to be asked today by Representative Slemp, of Virginia, to investigate the "Loyal Coalition," an alleged propaganda organization operating throughout the United States from Boston.

Slemp is anxious to ascertain whether or not the vast sums now spent by this organization come from British sources and are benefiting the Democratic campaign.

His inquiry comes on the heels of the charge made by Representative Fred A. Britten of Illinois that British gold and 2,500 British agents are helping Governor Cox.

An effort will also be made to ascertain whether or not the "Loyal Coalition" is working for what Sir Auckland Geddes, the British ambassador, so aptly described in his Toronto speech as "that still greater

Seeks Release of Husband

London, Aug. 30.—The following appeal to the people of the United States was issued through the International News Service today by Mrs. Terence MacSweeney, whose husband, the Lord Mayor of Cork, is dying from self-imposed starvation in Brixton jail:

Nothing that the American people can do can save my husband's life. It is too late for that. But I plead for America's help to have my husband removed from Brixton prison so that he will not have the stigma of dying in jail attached to his memory.

London, Aug. 30.—Fearing the consequences if Lord Mayor Terence MacSweeney of Cork dies from starvation, the British government has adopted a policy of strategy to keep him alive, it was learned from an official source today.

As soon as MacSweeney becomes unconscious in the Brixton jail infirmary, restoratives are to be administered.

Police guards in the district where the government buildings are located were redoubled today as a result of the resolution adopted by the Glasgow branch of the Sinn Fein, threatening to retaliate by wiping out the British cabinet if Lord Mayor MacSweeney dies.

fect the cases before the Grand Jury. He will have the assistance of one of the staff of the Attorney-General, probably Assistant Attorney-General Abbott, Jr.

AGENT PUT ON TRIAL.

Another feature in the investigation of Ponzi's affairs was the first trial of one of his agents, Camilla Retucca, at Plymouth, charged with obtaining money under false pretences.

Retucca appeared in the Plymouth District Court before Judge Harry B. Davis, charged with securing $200 from Antonio Silva on June 30. He was represented by Attorney John P. Vahey.

The first witness called by Attorney Martin Collinwood for the State was Miss Lucy Meli, former secretary for Ponzi and office manager of his concern. A feature of her testimony was the statement by Dr. Joseph Santiuososi, counsel for John S. Dondero, who also appeared for Miss Meli, that it was possible the young woman was being investigated.

Prosecution of the Ponzi agents will follow the general roundup made by the authorities in an effort to discover all the assets of the extinguished star of frenzied finance.

In this connection it was stated that at the bankruptcy proceedings, which will probably be resumed Wednesday at the Federal Building, Ponzi will be confronted by persons who have hitherto not been conspicuous in the case.

These individuals have promised their support to the receivers in the hunt for Ponzi assets, which include all the personal belongings which have not yet been turned over. Among these is the famous limousine which although ordered turned over to a Boston garage, is still at Lexington it was learned.

Mrs. Ponzi visited her husband at the East Cambridge Jail in a much more modest type of car, driven by a still loyal employe. It is understood that the receivers will be forced to send a man to Lexington if they wish to secure the limousine.

The receivers, while willing that Mrs. Ponzi and her mother-in-law remain at the Lexington estate until the assets are turned over to a trustee, are, nevertheless, determined that no more money shall be spent there. Dinner parties and other entainment will be taken, together with the purchase of gasoline and chauffeur hire.

POLICEMEN DEFIANT.

Members of the Boston police force confronted with exposure as a result of their dealings with Ponzi openly declared today they would resign before they would submit to a grilling by their superiors.

Not only do many of the officers defy their officials, but some have bragged that they have made small fortunes by serving as agents for Ponzi. One member of the department has no scruples about admitting that he has cleaned up nearly $10,000 in a few weeks between his own "investments" and commissions for inducing brother-officers to entrust their money to the promoter.

CURTIS AWAITS EVIDENCE.

Commissioner Curtis is now in the possession of full information bearing directly against several high police officials who had dealings with Ponzi, but no action will be taken. It was declared by the commissioner, until all the evidence had been collected. It was clearly indicated, however, that when the facts are presented connecting department men with huge Ponzi profits it will result in a sensation.

Several policemen who "invested" with the promoter stated today that their refusal to go before their superiors resulted more from fear of humiliation and criticism than from the belief that they had committed a breach of the department rules.

The officers known to have made handsome profits on the "Ponzi plan" by serving as his agents are deeply worried over what disposition will be made of their cases, since one of the iron-clad police regulations is that no member of the department may be employed in any other capacity for additional remuneration. A curious phase of the case is that policemen who "invested" are being questioned by certains who placed money with the promoter themselves.

The only defence heard from the policemen is that they were entitled to invest their own money in any manner in which they deemed best, and that their association with Ponzi was purely of a personal and unquestionable character.

The quest for assets has led far afield, and in addition to local policemen said to have invested with the Ponzi organization a number of New Hampshire police officials are now said to be involved. These officials, together with other prominent men of the Granite State, will this week be asked to explain their alleged dealings with Jonzi and his agents.

It is claimed that certain of these men obtained large sums from Ponzi, in several cases being able to draw out their money, on the day of the expose, because of their official positions and prestige.

Charge "Stool Pigeons" Among Lawrence Clients

Lawrence, Aug. 30. — The attitude of City Marshal O'Brien in withholding the list of investors in the Ponzi case is being criticised in some quarters of Lawrence where the belief is held that the list contains the names of "stool pigeons" and "drawers-in" to the alleged dupes. The list was sought from District Attorney S. Howard Donnell, who said that he had no objection to publishing the names of Lawrence investors.

With the refusal of Marshal O'Brien to surrender the list the district attorney has declined to go over the marshal's head in the matter. Some of the investors have asked that their names be kept out of the papers. The stories about alleged "straw investors" and men high in business circles have served to increase a demand for some of the "inside" facts.

During the examination of Ponzi investors at police headquarters, a man who turned $10 over twice in the scheme at a gross profit of $10 is said to have told the police that he would not return his winnings voluntarily. He states that the $10 is not net profit as he invested with Ponzi in Boston and had fares and expenses to deduct. The man was advised to engage counsel. This he refused to do. "If I have to pay it back, I will," he said, "but no lawyer will squeeze it out of me in fees."

CUTTERS RUSH TO AID OF BLACK STAR SHIP

Norfolk, Va., Aug. 30.—The steam yacht Kanawha of the Black Star Line, formerly the pleasure yacht of the late H. H. Rogers, oil magnate, is reported in distress off Beaufort, N. C. The coast guard cutter Manning, rushing to her aid, has passed Cape Henry and naval officials report that the cutter Seminole is also speeding to the vessel's assistance. The disabled ship has no passengers aboard.

FRENCH IN DEAL WITH WRANGEL

Defensive and Offensive Alliance With Soviet Enemies Is Reported

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 30.—A twenty-year defensive and offensive alliance has been arranged between France and the Anti-Bolshevik de facto government in Southern Russia, headed by General Wrangel, according to a Stockholm dispatch printed today by the Daily Herald, the official organ of the British Labor Party.

The Daily Herald prints part of the alleged text which purports to show the following agreements:

1—General Wrangel promises France 5% per cent on a secured loan and guarantees the Russian national debts contracted under the Czarist regime.

2—General Wrangel gives to France control of the railways and the customs at Black Sea ports and ports on the sea of Azov.

3—General Wrangel to hand over to France three-quarters of the naphtha exported from the South Russian oil fields and a quarter of the coal from the Don Basin.

Russians Claim Troops Are Close to Brest-Litovsk

By International News Service.

Paris, Aug. 30.—A warning to Poland and the allies that the Russian armies have been regrouned and are again advancing towards Warsaw was conveyed in an official Russian wireless message sent out by the Moscow government and picked up by French government stations today.

"We are glad to note that the Poles want peace," said the radiogram. "The advancing Russians have occupied several points in the direction of Bielostok and Brest-Litovsk and we are no wonly four miles from Brest-Litovsk."

A report sent out from Copenhagen that the Reds had recaptured Bielostok was officially denied by the French Foreign Office.

DEPOSITS IN U. S. BANKS INCREASE $1,597,187,000

The statement asserts that resources of national banks on June 30, 1920, segregated $22,154,737,000, an increase over the same period of last year of $1,597,187,000.

RILEY ASKS AID IN RUM FIGHT

Malden Judge Calls on Public to Help Him Drive Out Poison Liquor Makers

Judge Thomas P. Riley of Malden today appealed to the citizens of that community to aid him in stamping out the traffic of the "fiends and poison distillers" who are selling moonshine whiskey.

He made it plain that he was not after "home brewers" or reputable druggists doing a legitimate business on prescriptions.

He declared the people he particularly wanted to "get" were the "roughnecks and lowbrows of the Suffolk square bunch, and the gangs around Broadway extension and lower Edgeworth."

"These scurvy fellows are distilling brews that drive men crazy, break hearts and wreck homes," he continued.

"They are weeping crocodile tears because of the unenviable notoriety brought on this district by my campaign to smash their traffic. But the district can stand a little stench while they are being disposed of. The stuff they sell to the foolish is brain and body destroying.

"I know some persons are making a little beer and ale at home. I am not after them.

"I know others are making a little rum or whiskey. I am not after them.

"I know some reputable druggists are sometimes not overkeen in selling decent whiskey on prescription. I am not after them.

"The people I am after are poison distillers. I urge the decent people of Malden to call or write and give me facts which will enable me to drive them out of business."

BATHERS STONE PASTOR WHO FLAYED SCANTY COSTUMES

PREACHER TARGET FOR MISSILES

Summer Colony Resents His Sermon on Their Clothing and Conduct

Trenton, N. J., Aug. 30.—Showers of overripe tomatoes, stones and sticks, thrown by a crowd of one hundred bathers at Washington's crossing, greeted the Rev. Frederick Kopfman, self-appointed "saviour of the Summer colony," as he passed through the village on his way to the railroad station.

The attack was made on Dr. Kopfman after he had preached at the Titusville Methodist Church and was on his way to the station at Trenton to take a train for Brooklyn.

"Women must be saved," Dr. Kopfman shouted in the church as he began his sermon, waving both hands excitedly. "The country is in bad enough condition without having women go wrong. There is a wholelot that I could call the girls, but I will leave that to Billy Sunday to do."

"Washington's crossing is too sacred a place to be made to blush for the conduct of the Summer colonists and something must be done. The crossing is one of the worst places I have ever been in. It would need a stepladder to climb into hell."

When he launched his attack on the "seemore clothes" he said that some of the girls were so little that he thought they were tatooed.

FOUR ARE INJURED WHEN AUTO OVERTURNS TWICE

Simon Goldblatt of Lawrence, his wife and their three children were injured when his automobile swerved and turned over twice on Hanover Hill, Reading, near the North Reading line. The car plunged over a six-foot embankment.

Mrs. Lena Goldblatt, thirty-three, received a fracture of the skull, and her daughter Annie, ten, had eighteen stitches taken in a cut in her head and possibly has a fractured skull. Mr. Goldblatt, thirty, and his son Harold, nine, received many cuts and bruises, but Julia, aged five months, escaped serious injury. The Goldblatts live at No. 34 Bedell street, Lawrence.

B. & M. FREIGHT EMBARGO TO SPEED UP COAL

To facilitate the shipment of coal into New England on its lines, the Boston & Maine railroad has placed a temporary embargo, on certain carload freight felt to be of less importance until the present congestion is alleviated.

The company believes this will encourage an increase in the shipment of coal by water, thus relieving traffic by all-rail routes materially.

ARREST TWO FOR ROBBERY

Men Accused of Holding Up Woman Owner of Chinese Restaurant

John Wells of Harwich street and Robert Randall of Holyoke street, South End, were arraigned in Municipal Court today charged with robbing Phyllis Fong, proprietor of a Chinese restaurant in the South End, of $835 in money and other valuables today on Holyoke street.

The woman was going to her home in West Canton street when the two men are said to have jumped from behind a tree and demanded that she turn over her valuables at the point of revolvers. Her possessions consisted of $65 in gold, two Liberty bonds, gold earrings and eyeglasses, besides bills. She also gave up a revolver which she was carrying in a silk handbag.

The men ordered her to walk ahead and not look around, while they made away. A Chinese happened along Holyoke street and noticed the two men running away. He saw them go into a lodging house on that street and then went for the police.

Policemen went to the house. They said Randall was on the roof when they arrived. With revolvers in hand they went onto the roof and found $465 in a pail half filled with water. The police did not recover the rest of the loot.

that the London branch of the Sinn Fein is plotting to burn the British government buildings if the Mayor succumbs.

MacSweeney's wonderful vitality is amazing the medical staff at Brixton Jail. The chaplain who visited him this morning said he was conscious a clear-headed, but very weak. The head jail physician issued a bulletin saying that MacSweeney had shown improvement on Sunday, and that "there was no reason to expect a change for at least thirty-six hours."

It was denied that the Lord Mayor was suffering from abnormally high temperature.

Appeals for MacSweeney continue to pour in upon the government and crowds gather daily before the prison, where men and women kneel in the streets and pray.

A report was current here that Professor De Valera, "President of the Irish republic," had disappeared in the United States and was on his way to Ireland in disguise. It is understood that Scotland Yard has queried the American authorities regarding this report.

"Even if my husband is released and removed from the prison, the doctor who has been attending him gives me no hope that he will live more than thirty-six hours," declared Mrs. MacSweeney after a visit to her husband this morning.

"I found him very weak, much worse than he was Saturday. He keeps fitfully, but is so wasted that he is pitiful to behold. He was conscious and recognized me, but had only strength to whisper a few words, and his voice was almost inaudible."

Mrs. MacSweeney's information was at variance from the news secured in official circles that the government was determined to keep MacSweeney alive by administering restoratives during spells of unconsciousness.

Thousands Pray Before Jail for Hunger Strikers

By International News Service.

Cork, Aug. 30.—Like a vast congregation attending some devotional service, thousands of people today paced up and down before the prison, praying and singing for the eleven Sinn Fein hunger strikers who are confined behind the walls.

This was the twentieth day that the prisoners had gone without food and several of them are so weak that news of their death is expected momentarily.

Priests mingled with the crowds leading the hymns and reciting prayers. They exhorted the people to keep calm and refrain from disorder.

4 MORE KILLED IN IRISH RIOT

Over 50 Wounded in Fresh Outbreak of Pitched Battles at Belfast

posted at strategic points, while the police charged time after time into the mass of struggling fighters wielding heavy riot sticks.

Stores were closed as the shopkeepers feared looting. Most of the non-combatant populace remained hidden indoors. Sirens and revolvers were used in the pitched battle in Royal avenue during the morning.

Tea Orangemen were driven back and were preparing for a counter attack when a detachment of soldiers appeared. The soldiers threw themselves prone upon the ground with leveled rifles ready to fire if attacked.

A cordon of police was then thrown about the Sinn Feiners and drove them off, despite showers of missiles that rained upon them. The battle was subsequently renewed in North street.

Armored cars were used by the military authorities against both combatants and looters. These cars charged through Ewarts row and York street and dispersed two groups of fighting shipworkers and Sinn Feiners. There were many casualties in this engagement.

"I'm Not Responsible," Says Greenwood

London, Aug. 30.—"Does the government intend to prosecute Irish children for selling Irish flags in the streets?" asked E. J. Kelly, an Irish member, of Sir Hamar Greenwood, chief secretary for Ireland, in the Commons during the debate on the new Irish bill.

"I have nothing to do with that," replied Sir Hamar.

"You are the successor of the man who did so," said Kelly.

"I am the son and successor of Adam," retorted Sir Hamar, "but I am not responsible for the original sin."

Boston Man's Brother Killed by British Soldiers

Richard Harris of 765 101 River street, Mattpan, brought to the American office today news of the death of his brother, Thomas, thirty years old, in Buree, County Limerick, Ireland, who was killed while eating by a party of British soldiers who entered his home following a demonstration against the authorities in another part of the village.

Mr. Harris' brother was an invalid and had not left his home for several months. He lived with another brother, George, who keeps the village cobbler's shop. The soldiers entered the shop early in the evening after having killed a ten-year-old boy on the street. They ordered George to put up his hands, which he did. One of the soldiers struck him in the face with the butt of his gun and then others began firing into the dining room where the sick brother was eating.

When George picked himself up after the soldiers had gone he found his brother lying dead on the floor with a bullet through his head.

LAWRENCE MAYOR TO FIGHT RIVER DREDGING

Lawrence, Aug. 30.—Mayor William P. White will oppose the State Department of Public Works, it was stated following his receipt of a letter from Commissioner John N. Cole of that department, asking that Lawrence complete the dredging of the Merrimac River to the satisfaction of the State. Lawrence has already spent $60,000 on the dredging work and Mayor White declares that as the river has not been made navigable no additional expense should be incurred by Lawrence. It is probable that his answer will be a flat refusal to comply with Cole's request.

BOSTON SEES FIRST CHINESE STEAMER

Hwah Jah, the first steamship flying the Chinese flag to enter Boston harbor, arrived from Norfolk, Va. The vessel was formerly the steamship China of the American Line, and was interned in China six years ago.

She was seized by the Chinese government in 1917 and put in service as an American transport, carrying Yankee soldiers to France until after the armistice. She is now operated under a charter by the Robert Dollar Steamship Company.

LAWRENCE MILLS MAY BE IDLE ANOTHER MONTH

Lawrence, Aug. 30.—Little hope is entertained by mill workers of the American Woolen Company that the local mills will reopen before October. A number of weavers and menders have been sent for in some of the mills for sample work only. William M. Wood, president of the organization, declined to comment on the situation or to predict when the mills would reopen. Operatives say there is little wool on hand in the Lawrence storehouse. About 25,000 operatives are idle.

Stork's Visit Halts Family's Eviction

Lawrence, Aug. 30.—Because the stork is to visit Joseph Boucher, No. 37 Bodwell street, Judge J. J. Mahoney has halted his eviction from the tenement he occupies. Inability to find a tenement for his wife and four children was given as one of the reasons why the family had not heeded the notice to leave.

Wilfred Bouchard, the landlord, bought the place several weeks ago and is being pushed to leave his present quarters by another landlord. The tenant stated that the rent was boosted from $2.75 to $5 and that Mayor William P. White to whom he had complained advised him not to pay an exhorbitant rent.

"There was no wall paper," the tenant added.

The court told Boucher to take until October 1, to find a tenement.

SHOTS FIRED IN BROOKLYN RIOT

Street Car Strikers Rush Auto Bus Carrying Fifty Non-Union Men

New York, Aug. 30.—Seven shots were fired in the air by Brooklyn police today to frighten off rioting street car strikers of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit System, who rushed an auto bus containing fifty strike breakers brought from New Jersey. No one was wounded.

Brooklyn surface, elevated and subway traffic practically was paralyzed this morning by the strike of 6,000 men.

Long Island traffic was tied up all day Sunday.

One hundred surface car employes on leavored to prevent the first bus load of strike breakers from entering the Halsey street car depot.

About 12,000 employes are affected by the strike. The Brooklyn Rapid Transit system planned to provide some sort of elevated and subway service with 1,000 strike-breakers. Only of the company's officials said true entire system would be running by Wednesday.

Many temporary bus routes were put into operation today, but most of Brooklyn was forced to walk.

The employes demand roughly, 48 per cent increase in wages and an agreement by the operating company to stand by results of arbitration. Motormen and conductors on surface lines, now receiving 52 to 62 cents an hour, want 81 to 92 cents; shopmen want a flat increase of 33 1-3 per cent. Conductors and guards on elevated and subway lines, who now receive 49 to 57 cents an hour, want 72 to 90 cents. The company insists the men are striking for a closed shop. The employes deny this.

Mayor Hylland of New York charges that the strike was welcomed by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company as a lever in a renewed fight for higher fares. Railway officials pointed out that even if increased wages were awarded by an arbitration board, there would be no guarantee the company could pay them from its present revenue.

BRITISH WORK IN SECRET HERE TO ELECT THEIR FRIEND COX

The British government, whose great propaganda machine, says Representative Fred A. Britten of Illinois, is trying to compass the election of Governor Cox in order to bring America into the British-controlled League of Nations, still maintains at least four great war agencies in New York.

Despite the fact that Great Britain has signed and ratified the treaty of Versailles, and is at peace with Germany, she still maintains her Ministry of Munitions, her Ministry of Food, her Ministry of Shipping and her Naval Intelligence Bureau in America's greatest port.

In addition, she still maintains in their strategic propaganda positions certain British subjects who were exempted from military duty at home because their positions enabled them to "assist the cause" by retaining their places on New York publications. These publications are strong for Cox and for the League of Nations.

FRIEND OF THE BRITISH.

Prominent on the staff of Cox at the Grand Central Palace headquarters of the Democratic National Committee is a former naval officer, a protege of the vice-presidential nominee, Franklin D. Roosevelt. This naval officer has close personal and professional connections with British naval officers in this port.

The American learned that among the naval officers stationed at New York during the war for propaganda and censorship work there was a former employee of a now dead newspaper.

This newspaper had employed a British subject, who was sent abroad to learn the British censorship and propaganda game after America entered the war.

He returned with a commission in the British navy, and was assigned to the British Naval Intelligence Bureau which the Admiralty maintained in this port.

COULD DO AS HE PLEASED.

The Britisher enjoyed unique privileges. He was permitted to go down the bay to meet incoming steamships on revenue cutters by permission of Collector Newton. This, it was said, was by order of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, son-in-law of President Wilson. This privilege was extended to other members of his bureau.

Not only by virtue of his acquaintanceship with American Navy Intelligence officers, acquired by his journalistic work before the war, but also because he had the advantage of tuition by methods employed by the British, this officer gained great influence with the Army and Naval Intelligence officers of the American service. They also had the intimation from Washington that they were to be guided by the "more experienced and shrewder" Britishers.

U. S. PLAYING SECOND FIDDLE.

The American bureau virtually played second fiddle at all time to the British bureau. The latter also took up in the customs service at New York which would follow the election of a Republican President, and as the probable changes in the naval bureaus which would be caused by the displacement of Secretary Daniels, have made these British officers stationed in New York highly solicitous for the election of Cox, entirely independent of any orders they have had from London.

Franklin D. Roosevelt, Vice-Presidential nominee of the Democratic party, is highly praised by the British naval and military officers stationed at New York, and their praises are being re-echoed by the British civilian personnel. Roosevelt is regarded as having been the active head of the navy during the war, and the British are grateful to him for all the favors they received.

Another reason for the British desire to continue the present Democratic administration was "the decent way the Democrats respected British commercial interests in the war—real team work, we call it."

The South American trade was kept secure for British shipping. South American goods for the United States were carried first to Great Britain in British ships and then brought over here in otherwise empty troop and supply carriers, giving the Britishers full rates on the longer haul.

There was no danger that American goods would gain a foothold in the former German markets, since no service from American ports to South America was provided, and, of course, British ships sailing for England and other ships from America ports for England and France had no run for such cargoes. For this service the British thanked the Navy Department and the Wilson Shipping Board.

ADOPTED BRITISH BLACKLIST.

Another method by which American exports to South America were kept at a minimum was the adoption of the British blacklist by the Wilson Administration. The American informant said:

"There were two classes of firms in South and Central America before the war—ones which handled British goods and those which handled German goods. All firms which handled German goods were put on the German blacklist, supplied to the American Alien Property Custodian and the Departments of Justice and Commerce. Firms which handled British goods would not represent American exporters, even if they got over the shipping barrier, kindly erected with the cooperation of the Shipping Board and Assistant Secretary Roosevelt.

"The other South American firms which had formerly handled German goods and which wanted to get American goods to take their place could not get American goods, because the Wilson Administration had kindly adopted the British blacklist. The blacklist, however, did not debar these firms from getting British goods by signing satisfactory contracts not to handle German goods for a certain number of years after the signing of the Treaty of Peace."

CABLE CONTROL BIG ASSET.

British control of cable service during the war and afterward, with the consent of the Wilson administration, has greatly assisted British manufacturers at the expense of American exporters. One instance was the holding of cable messages dealing with an important order of steel for Norwegian government account. The American cables were held up for two months and meanwhile a British firm landed the order, being able to make a better price because of more favorable exchange.

The policy of the Wilson State Department has continued this advantage since the signing of the armistice. While British goods have been poured into Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland, Esthonia, Latvia, Courland and other Baltic States, it is still almost as hard to get American goods into these countries, an exporter said, as it was in the days when the British navy was holding up silk ships and taking them into Kirkwall for a search of their cargoes.

British control of mail and cables, without effective protest on the part of the Wilson Department of State, prevented American firms from getting their proper share of the business of these countries, which are in the market for vast quantities of manufactured goods.

Fifty-two per cent. of the alumni have contributed to the Harvard Endowment Fund, according to a statement just issued by the college office. To date $12,250,000, or 52 per cent. of the desired amount, has been raised. Of this sum, $4,004,403 came from Boston, $4,129,297 from New York and the rest from outside.

There are a present 17,760 names on the list of contributors.

NEW CHARGE IN COX PROBE

Alleged That Political Assessments Have Been Levied on Office Holders

Chicago, Aug. 30.—Representative James W. Good, Republican Chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, on the day of the opening of the inquiry by the Senate sub-committee into the fast-growing scandal of presidential campaign contributions, came forward with a sensational charge that Democratic office-holders had violated the corrupt practices act by levying political assessments on Federal employes.

He charged that Secretary of Agriculture E. T. Meredith and Wood Mardin, treasurer of the Democratic National Committee, became directors in an Iowa club which was organized to obtain money from Federal employes in secret.

He demanded that the Senate Sub-Committee, which will begin its inquiry at the Federal building today, make a sweeping investigation of the charge that an Iowa rural postmaster, among others, had been directed to contribute three per cent. of her salary.

BRITTEN READY TO TESTIFY.

At another point in his statement he asserted that if "the Cox method of compulsory, more widespread and like assessment were levied against each of the $60,000 Federal employes, whose compensation is $90,000,000 a year, the Democrats would be shown to have an annual campaign fund of $22,000,000."

Representative Fred A. Britten, whose charge that $87,500 appropriated ostensibly for "entertainment" purposes by the British Embassy at Washington had gone into the Democratic campaign fund directed attention to the possibility that England, through her own officials and through the syndicate of international bankers, was seeking the election of Governor Cox, said he was ready to face the Senate body.

QUOTES DEMAND FOR CASH.

Representative Good said today:

"Governor Cox knows, or ought to know, that it is a violation of the corrupt practices act to solicit campaign contributions from Federal officer or employe.

"Notwithstanding this the illegal club organized by Mr. Marsh and Mr. Meredith, now Secretary of Agriculture, wrote letters to postmasters soliciting campaign contributions. Here is a quotation from one of their own letters, the original of which will be furnished the Senate committee, written on stationery bearing their names as directors:

"People who owe us, excuse the debt by saying they can't make ends meet on account of the war. They don't get by with this to their grocer, and inasmuch as the game of politics is one of the largest businesses in the United States, and inasmuch as we are running politics in Iowa on a business basis they should not try that line of argument on us. But they do, and it keeps us going night and day in order to get the funds to run on."

ASSESSED FOR $33.

"Besides this, we have a great man other things to look after. We are looking after your interests in Washington, and are gathering information here in our own great State that will be of great value in years to come. Besides this, we are paying the national committee $12 on this year. All of this stuff is making us gray-headed.

"You owe us $33 for this year. I am sure you understand this proposition, because our representative, Mr. Plum, explained it to you when he called on you April 4.

"I have not written you sooner in regard to this matter because I wanted to give you all the time possible, and I knew that as soon as we needed the money you would send it in."

"This letter was written to a postmaster—a woman. The letter was written in violation of the corrupt practices act. The call on April 4 upon the postmaster at the Federal Building was in violation of the criminal code. Yet these offences go unpunished. Above all, the amount of the campaign boodle raised in this unlawful way is not made public. Why?

British 'Unseen Hand' at Work, Says Geddes

The operation of the "unseen hand" of the British propaganda service was openly discussed by Sir Auckland Geddes, the British Ambassador to the United States, in speaking on Saturday at Toronto at the opening of the Canadian National Exhibition. He said to the Canadians:

"Work for Canada, that Canada may prosper mightily, and working for Canada, remember that you are working for that still greater thing, the British family of nations, whose existence, IN UNSEEN WAYS, in a manner that only the archives of the chancelleries of the world capitals could reveal, serves, watches and protects your interests."

thing, the British family of nations, whose existence, in unseen ways, and in a manner that only the archives of the world capital (London) could reveal serves, watches and protects British interests."

"In view of the charges made by Mr Britten, the Senate committee is entitled to all possible information concerning this organization," said Slemp, today.

Existence of the "Loyal Coalition" has also come to the attention of Assistant Attorney-General Thomas J. Spellacy, who would not admit, however, that the department was giving it any official attention.

"There is no question that this organization is conducting propaganda and against the Irish," said Spellacy, "and I have noticed that they have plenty of money to spend for propaganda advertising."

Irish pickets in this country place the Loyal Coalition in the same category with British consulates and embassies.

Miss Gertrude Corless said today that her organization had picketed the "sumptuous Beacon street headquarters of the Loyal Coalition" in Boston.

GORE SCORES PROPAGANDA.

Domarest Lloyd of Boston is the accredited head of the organization. Welford Randolph Smith is vice-president and a man by the name of Arthur V. Jorin is treasurer.

"That there is a widespread propaganda by British agencies to overcome the Irish protest is obvious," said Senator Gore of Oklahoma here today. "Last Winter a delegation of preachers toured the country and they made no concealment of their object, which was to foster a better spirit between the two governments! The growing tendency on the part of governments to carry on propaganda threatens to become a custom. It is an evil one.

"I have been told," he added, "that the new school histories are quite unlike those of old; that the bad manners of King George Third have been softened or also omitted by the chronicler of modern school books to avoid any prejudice in the minds of young Americans on account of the Revolutionary days."

MADELINE TONELY FAILS TO FINISH LIGHT SWIM

After a two-hour encounter with a rough sea, and additionally handicapped by the low temperature of the water, Madeline Tonely, South Boston's nineteen-year-old champion swimmer, was forced to abandon her second attempt to swim to Boston Light. Just off Castle Island her attendants pulled the swimmer aboard. She had been in the water two hours and ten minutes.

Plymouth, Aug. 30.—The cranberry crop in this section will be practically a failure, according to reports from Plymouth, Carver and Wareham and the districts on Cape Cod. SEES DANGER IN PEACE LEAGUE

"We Must Not Be Dominated by Royalistic Police," Says Bishop Fisher

The coming election is one of the most important every held in this country, as it will decide whether the old ideals of America are to be preserved. Bishop Fred B. Fisher told a large congregation at the observance of Go-to-Church Sunday at the Hull Methodist Episcopal Church.

"There are those to whom the League of Nations is a panacea for all ills of the world," said Bishop Fisher. "Do not be misled by the name. I believe in a league of nations. I am an international, but I believe the strength of the league should depend upon the character of the individuals who compose it. I desire a league in which America can enter as a strong nation and not as a football for other nations.

"We must preserve American ideals and not be dominated by the royalistic police of Europe.

"This league guarantees the military dominance of France of the continent, the supremacy of England on the seas

LABOR WAR ON, SAYS GOMPERS

Declares Enemies of Workers Have Given Orders to Crush the Toilers

By SAMUEL GOMPERS.
Written exclusively for the International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 30.—The dominant spirit of the age is no longer religious creeds or forms, but industrial relations of social life.

Where the former are not in touch with these, they cease calling out our enthusiasm.

It is this new spirit which now controls our thought and action. Because of this new spirit Labor Day this year is unusually significant.

The spirit that made our war a great crusade and that made of our wonderful army a host of crusaders sworn to fidelity, to human rights and human freedom lives in everything that is truly American and demands expression in the acts of our public representatives and of our government.

In wanton denial of this nobility of thought and concept the Hessians of greed and plunder seek to ride down the rights of the people and destroy their liberties. The enemies of labor have given to their servants the mandate that labor must be crushed, its rights and liberties denied.

ISSUE ALREADY DRAWN.

The challenge of those forces to the citizenship of the nation is brazen and blunt. That the right thinking men and women of our republic can afford to allow this challenge to reap a harvest of political powwow in the coming election is unthinkable. More than in any political contest since the days of the Civil War the issue is clearly drawn between reaction and progress.

So it is that on this Labor Day we face grave complex and perplexing problems.

The one supreme issue is whether Liberty shall live.

It is the great hope of the organized labor movement on this Labor Day that the path of industrial democracy may be marked by none of the blunders of extremism.

Such democracy as we have yet to attain must be obtained through the institutions of the great and intelligent measure of democracy that we already enjoy. Any other course would be fatal to all democracy and lead us to that unhappy and tragic state of chaos which has brought so much distress to the people of Russia.

AMERICA IS BEST.

The great republic of the United States, with full allowance for every manifestation of evil that is within its borders, is still the best nation on the globe. There is no land so free, no land so fair, no land so abundant in opportunities for a great civilization and a grander concept of the ideals of human mind.

On this great Labor Day the workers in America mark a new onward step and set their eyes to another advance.

In this work for a better and brighter tomorrow it will come the co-operation of all helpful agencies, but will, under no circumstances, brook any interference whatsoever from those within or without who espouse the distorted vision of Bolshevism or who cling to the dead language of bourbonism.

AUTOIST IS HURLED 50 FEET AND KILLED

Falmouth, Aug. 30.—Frank Z. Doddy, aged thirty-three years, of No. 700 Commonwealth avenue, Boston, was killed when a touring car in which he was riding left the road at East Falmouth. Doddy landed against a fence and was thrown fifty feet. He died almost instantly.

The car was owned and driven by Joseph R. Hits of No. 447 Audubon road, Brookline. With him were J. M. Hennison and A. C. Harrison, both of Brookline. Mr. Hills was cut by glass from the windshield, but the other two men were not injured.

C. L. U. ATTACKS '13 ENEMIES'

G. O. P. State Candidates Are "Blacklisted" for Opposing Measures Asked by Union

An active campaign against thirteen Republican members of the House of Representatives who are seeking renomination was opened today by speakers of the Boston Central Labor Union's non-partisan political committee.

Opposition to the "thirteen enemies" by labor is based on their attitude toward measures favored or introduced by organized labor. Complete data of each of the condemned candidates and the manner in which they voted on the measures favored by labor were supplied the speakers at a meeting of the Non-Partisan Political Committee held in Wells Memorial Building.

The names of the candidates for re-election, against whom the fight will be waged, are: Martin Hays, Ward 25; James M. Hunnewell; Davis B. Kenleston, Ward 7; Benjamin C. Lane, Ward 22; George A. Gilman, Ward 16; Coleman Silbert, Ward 16; E. D. Stone, Ward 19-21; Frank B. Phinney, Ward 24; Herbert W. Burr, Ward 24; Henry S. Clark, Ward 24; W. J. Conlon, Ward 7; Addison F. Beardsley, Ward 16, and Seth F. Arnold, Ward 7.

Woman Asks Parking Space for Babies

Denver, Aug. 40.—Councilman Louis Straub, who represents a constituency of nearly 12,000 persons in the Denver city government, believes in giving the people who elect him to office a "run for their money."

Straub's district includes much of the business centre of Denver, and among the councilman's frequent callers is a woman who conducts a store on the main thoroughfare. Her plea is for the passage of a city ordinance creating parking space for baby carriages.

CROWD ASSISTS THIEF'S FLIGHT

Believe Gunman Who Tried to Rob Cashier Innocent, Protest Fist Fight

Interference on the part of a crowd of 200 bystanders allowed a gunman to make his escape after he had attempted to hold up and rob Patrick Waldron, cashier of the Buffalo Lunch, at No. 711 Tremont street. His flight followed a hand to hand fight with the cashier.

A short time ago the same thief tried to hold up Waldron, who foiled him by sticking a roll of bills in his pocket. In the holdup of Sunday the robber, at the point of a gun, told Waldron he was going to get the money in his pocket also.

Waldron, instead of throwing up his hands, rushed the gunman and pushed him into the street. In the struggle the thief lost hold of his gun and it fell to the floor of the restaurant.

In the mixup that followed, the crowd, thinking the gunman was merely being elected for some dispute in the lunchroom, quietly rallied to his aid, someone yelling, "Let's get a policeman and let him straighten it out."

The thief, quick to take advantage of the situation, jumped into an auto at the curb, saying, "Yes, let's find a policeman," and the owner, Henry H. Waldorf, of No. 21 Edison Green, Dorchester, started the machine and drove down the street to find an officer.

As soon as they were clear of the crowd the gunman leaped from the auto and made his escape.

KILLS HIMSELF AFTER SLAYING LOWELL WOMAN

The police state that Lapointe killed Mrs. Glines and then committed suicide by drinking poison. The couple had been living as man and wife in the tenement, neighbors state. The woman's skull had been fractured by a blow.

WENDELL TELLS WHY HE REFUSED BEQUEST

Professor Barrett Wendell of Harvard, who recently declined to accept a $6,000 bequest left him in the will of his brother, Evert Jansen Wendell, stated his reason for declining the bequest. He said:

"The money left me by the will of my brother, with whom I was always on the most affectionate terms, was shown, by private evidence, to be intended by him as the payment of a debt from somebody else. As this debt never existed, I could not honorably accept the bequest."

NEW ENGLAND TRADE REVIEW

Optimism Replacing Gloom in Shoe Industry

New England Manufacturers Encouraged by Better Situation in West—More Inquiries from Wholesalers; Expect Lower Prices Next Season

By THOMAS F. ANDERSON

Secretary of the New England Shoe and Leather Association.

New England shoe manufacturers and tanners are daily growing a little more hopeful that the turn in the long lane of business depression has been reached.

Their belief in this is founded not so much on any actual improvement in conditions in this section as on the knowledge that the shoe industry in the West has shown a noticeable improvement during the past two or three weeks.

The reason for this is that these Western factories supply mainly the great agricultural region, which has not suffered from the recent business reaction as much as the Eastern industrial centres, which are larger consumers of New England footwear than are the farming districts.

PLANTS ON PART TIME.

It is the opinion of manufacturers and wholesalers that this better buying spirit on the part of the Western public will shortly make its influence felt throughout the entire country, and that by December, at the latest, our New England shoe plants will be again running at nearly normal capacity.

At the present moment they are far from that happy condition. Aside from a very few concerns that are working an army or navy contracts, there are probably not any that are being operated at capacity, and many are down to a 40 or 50 per cent. basis if not entirely closed.

This situation will not be essentially improved until after Labor Day, for a number of plants that had not previously shut down will close for a week or more over that period, thus accentuating the prevailing serious unemployment situation which has been affecting thousands of workers everywhere throughout New England. Practically all of the large shoe factories in Manchester, N. H., are to participate in this Labor Day cessation.

The manufacturers, of course, regret the necessity for this, but there is nothing else for them to do, as the thousands of retail shoe merchants throughout the United States continue to order footwear sparingly, if at all, and the normal fall business of 1920 has practically been lost.

TOWER PRICES NEXT SEASON.

The time must come, however, when retail stocks will be depleted and the merchants must buy, whatever the prices. This present week a large delegation of shoe wholesalers from the West and South are expected in the Boston market.

This is looked upon by the local trade as a particularly significant indication, for if the wholesalers are becoming interested, it is a pretty sure sign that their retail customers have been in touch with them. Moreover, a largely increased volume of letters inquiring as to prices, next Spring styles, etc., are being received just now by New England manufacturers.

As to retail footwear prices, it is safe to assume that these are going to be somewhat lower next season, but is doubtful if they show on the average, a drop of more than one dollar or so a pair.

In spite of the demoralized international exchange conditions we are still exporting considerable quantities of boots and shoes to foreign countries, our world market, indeed, comprising some seventy different countries. June exports of footwear, were valued at more than $7,000,000. Cuba continues to be our best customer, and its purchases of American footwear, most of it made right here in New England, have been phenomenal during the last five or six years.

LABOR EFFICIENCY IMPROVED.

The shoe factory wage question is in a far from satisfactory condition in Lynn, Haverhill and one or two other centres in this section, but manufacturers unite in the statement that production per worker is increasing, and that there is not so general a disposition among employes to "loaf on the job." Most of them think that this is a permanent improvement.

In the local leather market there has also been a more optimistic atmosphere in the past week or two, and sales have increased to some extent. It has been the longest and most pronounced period of dullness in the history of the tanning and hide industries, and there are some New England tanneries that have been shut down for the first time in half a century.

Prices of most leathers are considerably reduced from recent high points, but stocks on hand are not believed to be abnormal, on account of the slow-down in tannery operations.

The New England trade is elated over the success of the first National Shoe and Leather Exposition and Style Show to be held under official organization auspices, which took place in Boston in July. This annual market-fair undoubtedly is destined to play a most important part in the maintenance of New England's leadership as a shoe and leather section.

INVESTOR EXPLAINS MORRIS PLAN BENEFITS

"Are you familiar with the Morris plan of loans on investments?" asked a certificate holder at one of the company's offices. Apparently he was anxious to tell of his dealings with the plan. He said:

"I came to this city three years ago from the West, after six months of real hard luck. My money was nearly all gone and members of my family needed help. I felt a little embarrassed when I first went to a Morris Plan office, but I soon found that they did business the same as any big store.

"They explained how the plan worked. I could see that I could pay all my debts and meet the other expenses in a convenient manner, borrowing money from them and repaying in weekly or monthly payments. After I had the necessary papers signed by two of my friends who were to be my guarantors, I was notified a few days later to come and receive my money.

"The year's paying slipped by quickly, and as I lived practically the same without this money, I decided that I would never be caught in such a position again, so I made arrangements with them to purchase one of their investment certificates by paying the same amount each month that I had been paying on my loan. I am still adding to my investment."

INFLUX OF IMMIGRANTS TERMED SERIOUS MENACE

By Universal Service.

Washington, Aug. 30.—What Louis A. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor, termed a serious situation, has arisen over the unprecedented influx of immigrants. Within the past week nearly 17,000 aliens were admitted at the port of New York alone.

"Many are coming from typhus infected regions of Europe," said Post. "Further restrictions can only be accomplished through quarantine until Congress can be persuaded to pass a law that will enable us to restrict from the right end; that is the European end."

RUSSIA HUNGRY BUT LOYAL

Former Officers of Czar Among Bolshevists; Illiteracy in Army Decreasing

By KARL H. VON WIEGAND,
Boston American Staff Correspondent.

Berlin, Aug. 30. — "There is hunger in Petrograd and in Russia, but no thought of revolt.

Nearly all the officers of the Bolshevist army were formerly officers of the Czar's army.

Illiteracy in the Bolshevist army has dropped from 40 to 40 per cent.

FORMER OFFICER OF CZAR.

The above are the high lights of one of the most interesting pen pictures of the Russo-British war. They are contained in a dispatch from a German correspondent who was with the Red forces on their retreat from near Warsaw. He rode in a transport wagon with the wife of the corps commander. The commander, his wife said, was formerly an officer in the Czar's army. Nearly all of the other officers are like him, she said. "Their training is military. There is nothing for them to do but be soldiers. So now they are carrying on in the Bolshevist army."

The woman came from Petrograd. She said that there is much hunger there and said that to her the fact is not explainable, the hunger is not followed by revolt.

The correspondent observed that all of the officers had orderlies and soldiers detailed as servants. When he made a comment to this effect the commander's wife declared that the weakness of the officers for servants is much more pronounced in the Red army than in the Czar's army.

FORCED TO LIVE OFF ARMY.

She said that her husband received 7,000 rubles per month, but that she was unable to live on that in Petrograd, where bread is 700 rubles a pound, a suit of clothes 80,000 rubles, a pair of shoes 14,000. She was compelled to follow her husband everywhere and live off the army. The wives of hundreds of other officers did the same.

A former officer in the Austrian army, now with the same rank in the Red forces, expressed enthusiasm for the life in the Bolshevist army. He said that illiteracy had dropped from 40 to 40 per cent.

America's Fisheries—An Undeveloped Industry of Great Possibilities

In its rich fisheries the United States possesses an undeveloped natural resource which needs only organization, capital and brains to make it one of the nation's greatest industries.

The American fisheries have hitherto been conducted so inefficiently that fish as an important food staple has failed to win the nation-wide popularity and market it deserves. So crude has been the organization of our fisheries, particularly as regards distribution, that fish in sufficient quantities and of good quality has been unobtainable regularly by much of our inland population.

The U. S. Bureau of Fisheries states that there is a huge unsatisfied demand for fish, especially in the Middle West and South. An enormously rich field awaits the wide-awake concern which enters the fish industry properly organized and equipped. In England, where twenty-five years ago the fisheries were in as chaotic a state as here now, more capital is profitably employed in the fisheries than in the American beef industry. The American beef supply is decreasing, and the consumption of fish will constantly grow.

The problems of handling and distributing fish and beef are identical, and progressive concerns are meeting them the right way, equipped with ample capital, fleets of steam trawlers, big central plants and excellent merchandising systems. All honor to these companies for their far-sighted progressiveness!

The Grand Circuit season was ushered in locally when racing in four classes was held at Readville today. A large first-day crowd was present and liberally applauded the fine program arranged by the management.

A lot of interest was manifested in the two-year-old trot, which brought together some of the fastest colts in the country. Among the speedier of those competing were Favonian (2:09¾), Rogalma (2:09¾), Lady Volo (2:11¾), and Nelson Dillon (2:10¾).

There was also a large field of clever youngsters eligible to the three-year-old trot, and this was expected to be a closely contested event.

Pacing Event Brought Out Good Competition

Good competition was brought out in the Neponset 2:06 $2,000 pace, the most valuable race of the week for the nine-wheelers.

The 2:10 trot was another race who brought out some thrills. The race brought together some of the fastest trotters in the Grand Circuit, and there was great uncertainty in picking the winner.

The field in the 2:10 trot was the smallest of the day, as only five started for the race. The small field in this race gave the reinsmen a better chance to show their skill in horsemanship, and the element of luck, always present where there is a big field, was practically eliminated.

FIVE TO COMPETE IN BIG CYCLING DERBY

The International Cycling Derby, the greatest classic on the bike racing calendar, is scheduled for Wednesday night at the Revere Beach track. To the followers of the bike game the Cycling Derby is the same as the world's series is to baseball fans.

The distance is the regular scheduled European route, 100 kilometres, or sixty-two and one-half miles. This distance will not only enable the riders to show their best speed in order to finish in the van, but it will tax their endurance as well.

Manager Nat Butler has selected five men to compete in the big event, George Wiley, Clarence Carman and George Chapman are to represent the United States in the race, while Leon Didier will sport the tri-color of France and Georges Colombatto will wear Italy's colors.

GETTELL IN CHARGE OF FOOTBALL AT AMHERST

Amherst, Aug. 30—The Amherst elevens will again have the services of Head Coach Gettell. A. F. Youngstrom, All-American lineman of Dartmouth, has been added to the staff and will be given charge of the linesmen. Practice will begin September 13.

TWO INJURED WHEN BLEACHERS COLLAPSE

TITLE BATTLE FOR BANTAMS

Boxers Meet Tomorrow Night at Triple A; Victory Means Bout With Herman

By JACK CONWAY.

"There will be a new bantamweight champion of New England tomorrow night at the time the brew factories closed in the old days," declared Young Montreal today.

As Terry Martin is the boss of the little fellows in this sector of the country and Montreal is billed to meet him tomorrow night at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building it is apparent that the youth with the same name as a well city has designs grabbing a title.

After you give Montreal's record the well known N-ray you are forced to admit that his supporters are not inspired merely by home brew. Here's the evidence as those local receivers would say.

Montreal won a referee's decision over Jock Sharkey at Providence.

Montreal won a referee's decision over Young Goldstein at Hartford.

Montreal won a referee's decision over Barney Snyder at Revere.

Any bird who can flatten Sharkey, Friedman, Goldstein and Snyder for losses doesn't have to say "absent" when the best of the bantamweights breeze along the pugilistic highway arrayed in the dear old battle paint the sob sisters like to write about.

Martin Ready to Do Battle Any Time

Martin, of course, doesn't intend to ask for an armistice or anything like that. He's one of those confident, take-a-chance fighters who has an idea he can beat any bantamweight in the world.

Pete Herman recently consented to meet Martin in a bout for the world's title, but Manager Nat Dowling Terrano have been put into tip-top condition and, as a result, the members will have better accommodations than has been the case in the past.

Tommy Corbitry of Gloucester will meet Billy Cahill of Everett in the semi-final of eight rounds. There will be another eight-rounder in which Young Bova of the West End will swap blows with Tommy Carson of Lawrence, while Riley of Winchester and Willie Coogan of South Boston are billed to box six frames.

Magirl on Trail of N. E. Middleweights

Art Magirl today burst forth with the glad tidings that he is open to meet any middleweight in New England. Magirl scored a victory over Jim Montgomery at Newport the other night and is eager to keep right on winning.

RED SOX WINNERS IN EXHIBITION CONTEST

Meriden, Ct., Aug 30.—The Red Sox Americans defeated the M. H. Schenck Co. team, 4 to 2, in an exhibition game.

Plymouth A. C. Wins

Woonsocket, R. I., Aug. 30. — The victorious Woonsocket K. of C. nine was halted in a five-inning game by the Plymouth A. C. team which won, 5 to 0. Not a hit was made off the delivery of Pitcher Sheridan of the winners.

RIVAL HOSE IN CLASH TODAY

White Sox Open at Fenway Park With Williams in Box; Jones Goes to Mound

The League Leading White Sox began the final West vs. East series today at Fenway Park. The champions have been going strong of late, despite their setbacks at the hands of the Yankees on the Polo Grounds last week, and were out to make their lead more commanding at the expense of the local heroes, who have not been going so very strong and have no particular position on which to strengthen their hold.

Manager Kid Gleason, with another world's series in prospect, shot Claude Williams, portsider, at the Red Sox batsmen, while Sam Jones was chosen to halt the Pale Hose. Sam has had his ups and downs with the present enemy but so has Williams with the Red Sox, so it looked like the breaks were destined to decide the result of the battle.

DELAWARE FOOTBALL SQUAD STARTS WORK

Newark, Del., Aug. 30.—The Delaware college football team, whose schedule includes games with Pennsylvania and Stevens, will leave today for Rehoboth Beach, Del., where Coach Shipley will conduct preliminary training for about two weeks.

This is the first time that Delaware has ever indulged in such early gridiron work, being due to the fact that the opening game is with Pennsylvania September 25.

Shipley will take twenty-four players to the beach, the majority of them being veterans. The game with Stevens will be played at Hoboken November 6.

SOCCER LEAGUE ADOPTS SCHEDULE AND ELECTS

Providence, Aug. 30. — A schedule was adopted and officers elected at a meeting of the Southern New England Football League held here. Four games this week, one on Thursday evening and the other on next Saturday afternoon. As these teams have already played three tie games this season a big crowd will no doubt attend. The games will be played at the M street playground.

REFEREE MADE BIG HIT AT REVERE BOUTS

Referee O'Connor of Charlestown made a big hit with the fans by his clean-cut manner in which he handled the two bouts he refereed at Revere. Both of his decisions were the proper ones. He impressed the writer as being a fearless, competent official. Furthermore, he was in command of the situation at all times and compelled the boxers to keep traveling at a lively clip.

Star Game for M Street

The City Point team, after defeating the Roxbury Red Sox and the H. H. Hood team, will play the fast Quincy Bureau team at the M Street Playgrounds, South Boston, tomorrow evening. The game will start at 6 p. m.

Giants Buy Outfielder

U. S. BEST PLACE FOR OLYMPICS

America Leads World in Conduct and Organization of Athletic Events

By CHARLES E. PARKER.

Antwerp, Aug. 30.—At this writing it had not been decided in which country the Eighth Olympiad will be staged, but if for no other reason than that of furnishing the world with a real example of conducting such gigantic athletic meets America should be given the preference.

It is not the object of the writer solely to criticize conditions under which the Antwerp games were conducted—the fact there was much in handling of the meet that deserved the highest commendation, particularly when consideration is given the fact that Belgium and her people have not fully recovered from the great war. It cannot be denied, however, that there was opportunity for great improvement in the conduct of the games and there is every reason to believe that had some nation set an example the Belgian Olympic officials would have profited mightily.

Absence of Welcoming Committees Noticeable

The first complaint that the majority of visiting athletic teams had to offer concerned the absence of any welcoming committee at the station or pier when the team reported, and the experiences resulting therefrom were both humorous and pathetic. Perhaps the most unusual experience of all was that of the Chinese team, on account of which spoke French or Flemish, the prevailing language in Antwerp.

The team was forced to spend the night in the park.

The Australian team, one of the earliest to arrive after having made one of the longest journeys experienced, the writer excepted, met with characteristic energy those in charge of the team sought out a real estate agent and secured a two months' lease of a chateau close by the city.

U. S. Army Officers Cared for Americans

The American team owed their reception to United States Army officers stationed in the city, but when they arrived at their schoolhouse headquarters, which was said to be of sufficient size to house 400 men they found it could not properly accommodate but that number, and to relieve the congested condition of their quarters the teams were quartered in the Hotel de la Paix, one of the American army hotels in Antwerp.

Disappointment but not complaint was registered by the track and field athletes when they found the cinder track soft and rather lifeless. The Jumpers and vaulters, however, made no bones of criticising conditions under which they were forced to compete. The runners, as a team and individually, were the only ones with justified complaints, for the track was found to be virtually had been built for motor cycle racing and presented a most difficult problem for foot power machines. The flat surface of the track was less than one yard wide while the turns banked at a 75-degree angle and thoroughout the staging of the contest races there were constant spills and jams and this opportunity for demonstrations of real riding ability.

Swimming Pool in Old Fort

The winners and divers also had their troubles, for the pool in which those events were conducted was the moat of one of Antwerp's ancient forts, the water of which was heavy and lifeless from standing and also annoyingly cold in temperature, while the diving boards proved so stiff and unbending that the fancy divers had difficulty in accommodating themselves to the change in style made necessary thereby.

According to Dr. G. F. Fiske, Jr. of Chicago, an eminent authority on revolver team which competed a few days before the arrival of our track team, the best work ever done in firing the event experienced their troubles from the beginning after the first round of ten shots on the 50-meter range. Dr. Fiske himself noticed that the Americans had a position appeared several meters closer to the targets than did the position assigned to the Americans and after an insistance that the courses be measured it was found that the South Americans had been firing from a distance of only 44 2-3 meters while the Americans had been working from a distance of 46 2-3 meters. This discrepancy was corrected and ordered a refiring of the round.

In addition, according to the Chilean physician, the South Americans were permitted to employ a target revolver with adjustable sights at complete variance with the Olympic rules, while shots made by members of the Belgian team and which failed to register anywhere on the target were not counted in the latter's score although the rules specify that any shot leaving a rifle or pistol shall be counted.

DELMONT AND JACKSON CLASH IN RING TONIGHT

New York, Aug. 30.—Gene Delmont, the Irish lad from Memphis, is staking his ring future on the outcome of his twelve-round bout with Willie Jackson at the Armory A. A., Jersey City, this evening. This bout will be the most important Delmont has participated in since he returned from war.

N. E. GOLFERS IN TITLE MATCH

Municipal Links Players to Meet on Hartford Course Next Saturday.

By ROBERT E. HARLOW.

Municipal links golfers in New England will hold their first individual and team championship, when they meet this week Saturday at the Goodwin Park links in Hartford. Boston, Worcester and Hartford and possibly Stamford, will be represented.

The municipal championships will consist of thirty-six holes medal play and the individual returning the lowest card will be New England's first municipal links champion. In order to determine the team championship, the five low cards returned by representatives of each club will be totalled. In the event of a large field, it may be decided to take the low ten cards from each club for the count.

Preliminary Practice for Scarboro Golfers

Many of the members of the Scarboro club who will represent Boston plan to leave for Hartford this week to practice on the course. Friday afternoon Boston will have a number of strong players in the competition and it would not be surprising if George Aulbech won the individual championship. Worcester and Hartford will have strong teams entered.

The competition is such that each of the Municipal links clubs will start as many players as desired, but for this reason Joe Burns, captain of the Scarboro team, is anxious that as many Scarboro players as possible go to Hartford and report at the Goodwin Park by 9 o'clock Saturday morning. It is not necessary to wait for an appointment on the Scarboro team, as the team will consist of the players who return the low scores at Hartford.

Goodwin Park Is Best Public Course in East

The Goodwin Park links are eighteen holes and by far the best public course in the East. They have been in use for a number of seasons. S. Wales Dixon, superintendent of construction for the city of Hartford, states that great preparations are being made there to accommodate the municipal links golfers an enjoyable day. The Hartford park department will furnish a dinner to all players and prizes.

A banner will be awarded the team champions and individual and team prizes for the winner of the individuals and for second and third low gross.

The Massachusetts caddy championship was played today over the Woodland golf course.

DEPARTMENT STORE LEAGUE NOTES

This week will probably see the finish of the Department Store League, with three games scheduled, and possibly a protested game to be played at Soldiers Field. The Filene team of the Hovey team is at present leading the league, but with games yet to be played with Jordan Marsh and Shepard, the championship is still in doubt.

Talbot has scheduled to meet the Bulfinch nine on Friday, but the latter should easily defeat the callenders. A look for the Hovey team in either of the remaining games will put it's title in the league between Hovey and Talbot.

The first game of the week will be played tonight at Soldiers Field between the White and the Shuman, while the Hovey team will meet the Shuman tomorrow.

CHAPTER XXIV.—Continued

"I THOUGHT you were motoring!" she exclaimed.

"The car is laid up," said Stephanie, in a muffled voice.

"What's the matter? You don't you feel well, Steve?"

"No—did very."

"Can I do anything? Wait a moment——She continued on to her bedroom, unpinned her hat, and drew on her working smock and slid slowly back, buttoning it.

"What's wrong, Steve?" she inquired.

"Nothing," said the girl, dreamily. "I'm just—tired."

"Why—you've been crying!" she continued Helen, bending over her. "What is making you so unhappy, Steve? Trust you wish to tell me?"

"Shall I sit here by you, dear? I can work this afternoon——"

"No—it isn't."

"And you rather be alone?"

"Yes."

Helen went slowly away toward the couch where her rag and its color were ready for her. Stephanie lay motionless, dumb, wretched, her bosom throbbing with emotions too powerful for her—yet too vague, too blind, to enlighten her.

Unawakened to passion, ignorant of it, regardless and disdainful of what she had never coped with, the mental and spiritual suffering was, perhaps, the keener.

Mumiliation and grief that she was no longer first and alone in Helland's heart and mind had grown into a sorrow deeper than she knew, deeper than she admitted to herself. All the childish and petiter emotions attended it, mocking her with her own frailty—ignoble jealousy, hard resentment, the primitive sarcasm born of envy—the white flash of hatred for those to whom this man turned for amusement—this man whom she had adored from boyhood.

Trying to Analyze

Why had he cast her out of the first place in his heart and mind?

He had even told her that he was in love with her. Why had he turned to this shameless dancer?

And to what others did he also turn to find amusement when she did not know where he was?

Had it been her fault? No. From the very first night that he came back to her—in the very face of her happiness to have him again—he had shown her what kind of man he was there at the Ball of All the Gods—with that dreadful Goddess of Night.

She turned feverishly, tortured by her thoughts, but neither they nor the hot pillow gave her any rest. They stung her like scorpions, setting every nerve on edge with something—anger, perhaps—something unendurable there in the silence of her room.

And at last she got up to make an end of it, once and for all. But the preparations took her some time—some cold water, brush and comb, and a chamois rag.

Cleland, now dressed for luncheon, humming a comic song under his breath and contentedly numbering his latest pencilled pages, heard the tap at his open door, and looked up cheerfully, hoping for Marie Cliff, a pre-prandial dance, and a pretty companion at luncheon. Instead, entered, wearing the mask of Stephanie Quest.

"Hello!" he cried gaily, jumping up and coming toward her. "This is too delightful. Are you coming out to lunch with me, Steve?"

A Bold Accusation

"Sit down a moment," she said. But he continued to stand; and she came over and stood beside his desk, resting one hand on it.

And after a moment, lifting her gray eyes to his:

"I have borne a great deal from you. But these is an insult which you have offered me today that I shall not endure in silence."

"What insult!" he demanded, turning red.

"Making my studio a rendezvous for you and your entertainers!"

He knew what she meant instantly, and his wrath blazed.

"It was an accident. I don't know how you heard of it, but it was pure accident. Also, that is a rotten thing to say——"

"Is it? You once told me you prefer to call a spade a spade! Oh, Jim—you were clean once. What have you done?"

"But it's a lie—and an absurd one!"

"Do you think that of me, too—that I tell lies?"

"No. But you evidently believe one."

"It is too obvious to doubt——" Her throat was dry with the fierceness of her emotions and she choked a moment.

"Who told you,"

"I was there."

"Where?"

"In my bedroom. I had not gone out. I heard the maid tell you I was out motoring. I meant to speak to you—but you have been so—so unfriendly lately * * * And then that woman came in."

Eyes Blazed

Her gray eyes fairly blazed.

"Why do you do this to me?" she cried, clenching both hands. "It is wicked—unthinkable! Why do you hold me in such contempt?"

Her fierce anger silenced him, and his silence lashed her until she lost her head.

"Do you think you can offer me such an affront in my own studio because I am really not your sister? Because your name is Cleland and mine is not? Because I was only the wretched, starved, maltreated child of drunken parents when your father picked me up in the gutter! It that why you feel at liberty to affront me under my own roof—show your contempt for me? Is it?"

"Steve, you are mad!" he said. He had turned very white.

"No," she said, "but I'm at the limit of endurance. I can't stand it any longer. I shall go tonight to the man I married and live with him and find shelter there—and protection and—I-forgetfulness"—Her voice broke, but her eyes were the more brilliant and dangerous for the flashing tears:

"I know what you and my aunt talked over between you," she said. "You discussed the chances of my developing erratic, unscrupulous, morbid, immoral traits! You were anxious for fear I had inherited them. Well, only now you think I have. Think as you please——she flashed out through her tears; you have killed every bit of happiness in me. Remember it some day!"

She turned to go, and he sprang forward to detain her, but she twisted herself out of his arms and reviled herself against the desk.

Then he had her in his arms again and she stared at his white, tense face, all distorted by her burning tears.

His Declaration

"I love you, Steve! That's all the answer I give you. That's by reply to your folly. I never loved anybody else; I never shall; I never can. I am clean. I don't know how it happened, but I am! They lie who tell you anything else; I'm like my father; I care for only one woman. I'm incapable of caring for any other.

"I don't know what I've done to you to make you say such things and think them. I consider you as my own kin; I respect and love you like a kinsman. But—God help me—I've gone further; I love you as a lover. I can't tear you out of my heart: I've tried because I saw no hope that you ever could fall in love with me—but I couldn't do it—I couldn't.

"If you go to the man you married I shall never love any other woman. That is the truth, and I know it, now!"

Her body was still rigid in his arms; her tense hands lay flat on his breast as though to repel him.

But there was no strength in them and they had begun to tremble under the hard beating of his heart.

Her mouth, too, was quivering; her tear-wet eyes looked mutely into his; suddenly her body relaxed, yielded; and at his fierce embrace her hot mouth melted against his.

"Steve," he stammered—"Steve—can you care for me—in my way——"

Under the deep-fringed lids her grey eyes looked at him vaguely; her lips were burning.

"Steve—" he whispered.

Her slowly lifted eyes alone replied.

"Can you love me?"

Her eyes closed again. And after a long while her lips responded delicately to his.

"Is it love, Steve?" he asked, trembling.

"I don't know. . . . I'm so tired—confused——" Her arms fell from his neck to his shoulders and she opened her eyes listlessly.

"I think it—must be," she said. "I'm quite sure it is!"

"Love?"

"Yes."

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND

Nolan

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

NOLAN VARIATIONS — O'Nolan, Nowlan, O'Nowlan.
RACIAL ORIGIN—Irish.
SOURCE—A given name.

THE family names of the Nolan group have suffered a good bit less change than most Irish surnames in their transition from the Irish to the English tongue, and from the Gaelic to the English alphabet. But at that, neither Nowlan nor Nolan look much like O'Nuallain."

The Nolan names, like virtually all Irish family names in this country, resemble their ancient forms more in pronunciation than they do in spelling. The reason for this is clearly the fact that the Gaelic and the English languages have different alphabets. It is true that most of the letters in English have their counterparts in Irish, but as the Gaelic is written or printed it resembles Greek more in appearance than it does English. Furthermore the Irish pronunciation of various letters differs radically from the English. It was natural, therefore, that in the period when the Gaelic names were taken over into the English, they were spelled in the latter language as they sounded, rather than as they were spelled in Irish.

The O'Nuallains appear to have originated in the country about Forth and Carlow, in Ireland, as the followers and descendants of "Nuallan," himself a descendant of Eochaidh Fionn Fohart, a younger brother of the famous "Conn of the 100 Battles." As a given name, "Nuallan" is a compound of two Gaelic words, "nuall," meaning "famous," and "an," meaning "one who." In short, the name means in English, "the one who is famous," or "the famous one."

The beginning of the Nolan, or Nowlin, as they were then called, family in America dates back to about 1700, when three brothers, Joseph, John and William Nowlin, emigrated from Ireland to our shores. John went north, William went to New England and James settled in Virginia.

There is neither the space nor the need to mention the brave deeds or the many tasks accomplished by the descendants of these stalwart sons of Erin, but I think it is fitting to recall one of them, Major Henry Nowlin, a courageous and valiant soldier for the Union during the Civil War. Many of his kinsmen fought alongside of him and some fought against him, but they all fought for what they thought was right.

Tomorrow—King.

A New Kind of Self-Denial

By Loretto C. Lynch

THEY tell us that denying ourselves certain things helps us to become stronger morally. Yet how often you ever thought how much more firm a foundation, how much more strong a foundation the average home would stand upon if the contracting parties practised self-denial before they set to get the necessary furnishings for the home before marriage?

A woman above average intelligence has just told me her tale of matrimonial woe. It is pathetic. Yet I am wondering if much of her suffering might not have been avoided if the couple had practised self-denial before marriage in order to get together a decent home over which the spectre of debt was not constantly hovering.

"We had no furnishings whatever when we married. We bought some on the instalment plan, and as we were both very fond of good furniture, we bought more than we could comfortably pay for. My husband earned a pretty good salary and we thought we could afford to take a chance. Things went well for a while, but then some of the household linen began to need replacement. And we had sickness. The cost of living was high. The whole thing began to get on my nerves.

Reminded Husband

"Every time I saw my husband smoking a thirty-five cent package of cigarettes I could not help but remind him that if he would give up this expensive habit I could, perhaps, replenish some of the towels that had been destroyed during one of his illnesses. Whenever he suggested a little much needed recreation, I reminded him how far in debt we were for our furnishings. And so he simply got tired of hearing of expense. He earned the money and it was all mortgaged up, and of it all in two years there was not a cent he felt free to spend."

That is the tale. And they quarrelled. Yet these folks had within their grasp the great gift of happiness. The young woman used to scoff at other girls who were decorating themselves some of the silly things of life so that they might have on hand some of the stable things that every well regulated home needs must have.

There was Betty, for instance. She used to spend her little savings each week on some one or two substantial things that she knew she would enjoy later on in her very own home. She would purchase a pretty linen piece often for the same money others no more wealthy than she spent for a marcel wave at the hairdresser's.

Betty and John had a good start before they started housekeeping. They owned enough towels, sheets, pillowcases, tablecloths, napkins, and the like properly to run a home without replenishing for several years to come. In their first home they began by furnishing just three of the four rooms. They furnished the kitchen, the bedroom, and bought enough furniture to get along with for the living room.

They started with no debt. When there was a little needed recreation suggested there was no objection. They owned what they had. The little savings had been set aside for future furniture and emergencies. And after five years they are getting on famously. There is a well-furnished home. And every time John takes his after-shower rub with one of the luxurious bath towels he calls out, "Bet this cost some one the price of several ice cream sodas."

Hope Chest

As I said some time ago, the idea of a hope chest may be old-fashioned, but it surely is a good idea for the girl who thinks more of her future home than she does of some one's giggles. The average poor girl cannot get together the staples of a home in the three or six months of her engagement.

Many girls have comparatively easy positions and find themselves with time on their hands for embroidery or knitting. It is surprising how quickly these little things that go so far toward making home homely can be collected in one's spare moments.

Having a good start is half the game in any play. Having a good start with your home furnishings is a big step toward a greater degree of happiness in marriage.

When a Girl Marries

By Ann Lisle

"DO I trust you fully and entirely?" I repeated, facing Jim in utter astonishment. "Do I need you? How can you ask that, Jim? Of course I do!"

"We'll come to that later," replied Jim almost curtly. "Where Pat is concerned I see you may need me. But that's my sister's affair—only natural you should feel I can be trusted to deal with it as best I know how."

"I don't understand you?" I cried. "You dear, funny little kid! As if I didn't know darn well what's eating you. It's that long journey stuff from Pat's spiel."

"But what else can Pat mean?" I asked. "Oh, Jim—I know you think I'm all sorts of a fool and always wanting to play fairy godmother and be little Miss Fix-it. But I'm so happy myself and I have so many blessings that I can't help wanting other people to have a taste of the wonderful joy that's come to me"——

Against Her Heart

"You blessed darling! You blessed, blessed honey-lamb!" Jim's voice clouded over and he flung himself on his knees and laid his face against my heart.

"Anne, have you come to me because you believe in my strength, or are you going to run this, with a little assistance from me?" asked Jim.

"You're running this." I said at last—happy to know that I meant it. "What I haven't told you is this —I feel sure that Pat is going to—going to make away with himself."

"Pat's no quitter," replied Jim thoughtfully. "He wouldn't take the coward's way out. And beside being too much of a man to—commit suicide, he has the brain to know that nothing could more hideously cloud and mar and besmirch Virginia's life than just that."

"I didnt think of that!" I confessed.

"No—but Pat will. He'll see that if a divorce would point like a signpost to Virginia and this darn Black cub she's running with, the other thing would mark her all the more terribly—he'll see that all right. But I've one possibility of keeping him on even keel. Uncle Ned's going North tomorrow to look after some property that I'm sure adjoins Pat's holdings. Anyway, they can travel together for about twelve hours. And that husky old guy would be a tonic and a saving grace for any one. He'll look out for your Pat. I'll see to that."

To Ease Our Minds

"Just to ease both our minds, however, I'm going to call Pat and arrange to see him this evening—might even have dinner with him—for darn lonely and morbid eating alone all the time."

After a few minutes' low-voiced conversation over the telephone Jim turned to me with a complacent:

"Now it's all fixed. You needn't worry about Pat any longer. I'll shave and clean up a bit, and if the message from Uncle Ned hasn't come by the time I leave, I'll trust you to take it. Valuable Information

A citizen, whose daughter was about to be married, approached a friend. "Morris," he said, "your oldest daughter was married about five years ago, wasn't she? Would you mind telling me about how much the wedding cost you?" "Not at all," was the answer. "About $1,200 a year."

Not a Grain of Dust

The grinding of the mirror's surface was a feat even more notable than the casting of the block of glass.

To accomplish this task took an entire year, and the work was done in a room with double windows, sealed; the air that entered was filtered to keep out dust; the walls and ceilings were coated with shellac; canvas was spread above the grinding machine and the floor of the room was kept wet. When finished it was silvered by the deposit from a solution of nitrate of silver poured into it. Transported to the

The Adventures of Ann

By Hal Coffman

CHAPTER XI.

THE day after Harwood's visit to Ann's home she was returning from an errand when she met Frank Langdon. Frank was in a disheveled condition and looked as if he had just been in a fight.

"Why, Frank," exclaimed Ann. "What is the matter? Your clothes are torn and you are a sight."

"A fellow we both know said a rich guy was putting up for you," Frank answered. "Paying for your music lessons and things like that. When I said it wasn't so, he sneered and winked at some other fellows. I lost my head, I guess, and we've just had quite a battle, but I don't think he'll say it again. Of course it isn't so, is it, Ann?"

"Why, you silly boy," said Ann, "I don't see whose business it is if Mr. Harwood wants to see me get along with my music and has arranged to have me take lessons from a great teacher. I'll thank you and everyone else to mind your own business and not mix in my affairs."

"Spt—but, Ann, this an Harwood has a bad reputation, the papers have had stories about him and his escapades for years. Surely you or your family wouldn't think of being mixed up with him in any way! Why, the whole neighborhood is talking about it," exclaimed Frank, earnestly, as they walked along toward the house in which they both lived.

"Huh, is that so?" said Ann, tossing her head. "If these busybodies would mind their own affairs, they would be better off. Mr. Harwood is a perfect gentleman, and I guess you would never see HIM mixing in a fight like some common person. Perhaps some people are jealous because I go riding in automobiles and they can't."

Ann swept into the house, leaving Frank standing on the steps looking dumbly after her.

A Curious Title

Among curious titles in the British peerage must certainly be reckoned that of Lord Saye and Sele. It was in the origin the Barony by Writ or Saye, created in 1313, and extinct or in abeyance by 1399. It was revived in 1447 in favor of a Fiennes of Hurstmonceaux, who took the additional title of "Sele," which comes from one of the Seals in Kent—perhaps the village of Seal, near Sevenoaks. The title of "Saye" was assumed by reason of a descent from that family through the new peer's grandmother.

A Cure by Proxy

Wan, and with black rims round his eyes, the man sat in the surgery.

"Doctor," said he, "I'm the victim of insomnia. I can't sleep if there's the least noise, such as a cat in the back yard, for instance."

"This powder will be effective," replied the physician, after compounding a prescription.

"When do I take it, doctor?"

"You don't take it, my dear sir," was the doctor's bland reply. "You just give it to the cat in some milk."

A Warming Process

"It is said that paper can be used with effect in keeping a person warm." "That's true. I remember a thirty-day promissory note of mine once kept me in a sweat for a month."

Secret of Energy These "Dog Days"

DR. W. B. CALDWELL
In his 83rd year

THERE is no time of the year when people should be more careful of their diet than during the hot summer months, but unfortunately it is the season of greatest carelessness. Cold foods, ices, unripe and overripe fruits are soon followed by cramps, heartburn, indigestion, constipation.

Do not wait until you have a splitting headache, but when you find yourself getting bilious and constipated, that very night take a teaspoonful of Egyptian Senna and Pepsin, which is sold in drug stores under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. By morning your bowels will be relieved and the congestion gone. Then be cautious at meal times for a few days and you will have no further trouble.

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is a combination of simple laxative herbs with pepsin that has grown in great public favor for thirty years. We know of many thousands of households that are never without a bottle. Mr. Eugene McManus of Manayunk, Pa., was very dyspeptic until he patronized his druggist for a bottle of Syrup Pepsin, and now he eats what he likes and digest whatever he eats; he is sleeping sounder, gaining in weight and strength and is in all respects feeling better than in years.

Just get yourself a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin at a drug store and see the great good it will do you.

FREE Millions of people of all ages suffer from occasional or chronic constipation. Let them send name and address to Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 512 Washington Street, Monticello, Ill., for a free sample bottle of his wonderful Syrup Pepsin. 8 million bottles were bought at drug stores last year, the largest sale in the world.

Household Suggestions

To clean coral beads, dissolve a teaspoonful of borax in a pint of warm water. Dip the coral in and when clean pass through tepid water. Dry by rolling in a soft towel.

To remove oil from a carpet, put some flour on the carpet and brush it off very carefully into a dustpan. Keep on applying flour till all the grease has been absorbed.

To turn a jelly out of a mould without breaking it, try rubbing a very little of the best olive oil on the shape before pouring in the jelly.

When cake tins are worn thin, scatter a little sand over the oven shelf before putting the tin in, and the cake will not burn in baking.

* * *

When cutting fur, never use scissors; use a razor or a very sharp penknife to cut through the skin at the back.

Playing cards can be cleaned by rubbing them with talc or placing them in bran heated to the highest temperature. Stir them about in the bran to remove grease. They can also be rubbed with a rag slightly dampened with benzine.

* * *

Onions should always be boiled in water that has been salted; otherwise they lose much of their flavor.

* * *

To render pie crust flaky, try adding half a spoonful of vinegar to the cold water when mixing.

* * *

Genuine bronze must never be washed with soap and water. It may be washed with pure bear occasionally, and afterwards dusted with a soft brush and a chamois leather.

62 GIRLS CROSS THE LINE IN AMERICAN SWIM

To the accompaniment of screeching whistles from steamboats and the applause of thousands of persons who lined the sea wall, sixty-two girls finished the big swim of the Boston American in the Charles River Basin. The attendance at the race, according to officials of the Metropolitan Park Commission, was 50,000. Olive Holland of Wollaston won the race. Her time was 29 minutes and 11 seconds.

Dr. John H. F. Connor and a corps of physicians examined a large number of the 244 girls who entered their names for the race and disqualified many for physical reasons. The day was ideal for the race, cool enough for the spectators and warm enough for the swimmers.

Of the large number registered, seventy-four were allowed to compete, which made the race comfortable.

John A. Lane gave the signal which started the race at 8:34. Then came the struggle for supremacy up stream to the stake boat near the Harvard Bridge, for the course, up and back, comprised one and one-half miles and 200 feet.

During the race the swimmers were amply protected, for the swimming editor of the Boston American had arranged with Superintendent West and Lieutenant Chapman and Sergeant of the Metropolitan Park Commission police to keep the course clear of coachers, and had plenty of life guards in boats headed by John J. (Mickey) Flaherty of the Revere Beach Life-Guard Corps to look after their interests. Only twelve were taken from the water when they concluded they were unable to continue the swim to the stake boat.

MISS HOLLAND TAKES LEAD.

"Bob" Carey of L street baths, who won a record some time ago by swimming to Boston Light, was timer in the stake boat with "Doc" W. E. Crockett of South Boston. The first girl to pass was Olive Holland, eighteen, of Wollaston, covering the first half in 17 minutes. She was followed by Ruth Norwood of New Bedford, whose time was 17 minutes 5 second. Next came Cecile Vilandre of Worcester, time 17 minutes and 6 seconds; followed by Lalah Mildred Squires, 17 minutes and 6 seconds; Didi Anderson, 17 minutes 7 seconds; Delma Carlstrom, 17 minutes and 9 seconds.

Then came the final struggle. It was nip and tuck between Miss Holland and Miss Norwood. They were followed closely by Lalah Squires, Mae Eckford and Mae Parker. These proved to be the winners and as they neared the raft of the Metropolitan Park Commission, from which they started, each received an ovation.

A feature of the race was the reception accorded Claire and Ethel Mathieu, eight-year-old twins, of Willimantic, Ct. Everybody seemed to be concerned about them. It was thought by the police they were too young to finish the distance, but their father insisted they could cover the course easily. A group of fashionably gowned women on the army yacht Lieutenant Humpus joined in cheering the youngsters as they finished. Screeching whistles greeted their arrival.

HANDSOME PRIZES AWARDED.

Olive Holland covered the distance in thirty-nine minutes eleven seconds. Ruth Norwood's time was forty minutes ten seconds; Mildred Squires, forty-three minutes fourteen seconds; May Eckford, forty-three minutes fifteen seconds; Mae Parker, forty-four minutes sixteen seconds. Miss Holland, as first winning girl, was given the title of champion amateur swimmer for New England for 1920. Each of the other four girls received a handsome prize. The prizes consisted of the following:

First prize — Four-piece silver hammered tea set.

Second prize — Three-piece lady's toilet set.

Third Prize—Twenty-six-piece set Rogers silverware.

Fourth prize—Three-piece carving set, sterling silver mounted.

Fifth prize—Silver sandwich tray.

Each girl who finished will receive a handsome certificate, the design for which is now being arranged by the Swimming Editor.

The American is deeply indebted as all who in any way assisted in making the affair a success.

"The Boston American is to be commended for the fine spirit manifested in conducting such a wonderful event," said Superintendent West of the Metropolitan Park Commission police. "It was a thriller from start to finish."

Senator George E. Curran and Representative Timothy J. Driscoll of Roxbury and Dr. John H. F. Connor rendered valuable aid in making the affair a success.

LIST OF WINNERS.

The winners' numbers were 241, 159, 2, 270 and 128.

James D. Walsh timed the return. State Senator George E. Curran was clerk of course. Robert T. Carey was in charge of the stake boat.

Stomach Out Of Order? Try NR

Nothing Better to Straighten You Out After Eating Too Much. Tones Liver, Regulates Bowels. Acts Pleasantly. Guaranteed.

Many people eat too much every day and most eat much too much some days. That is why Americans suffer more than any people in the world from indigestion, biliousness and constipation.

With a little thoughtfulness and care, however, a great amount of this distress could be avoided and you'll never realize how true this is until you become one of the several million people of this country who keep a box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) constantly on hand and use it whenever indigestion, biliousness or constipation threatens.

TRADING QUIET ON THE FALL

Steels and Oils Lead the Decline, While Rails and Motors Are Steady

By W. H. ROBB,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, but above their lowest level of the morning, there having been improvement in the second hour. The market was quiet, dull and irregular, transactions totalling about 70,000 shares. Call loans renewed at 8 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were off at the opening, quotations being demand sterling, $3.55¾, off 1 cent; francs, .0686, off .0002, lire, .0411, off .0007; marks, .0202 unchanged.

Among weakest issues were Car and Foundry, Baldwin, Barrett, Houston Oil, Mexican Petroleum, Pan American, Crucible, Republic, Republic Steel, Tobacco Products, Stromberg and Haskell and Barker. They were down from one to more than three points at their lowest. American Sugar rallied and showed a small gain. Other strong stocks in Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Ohio and Woolen common.

LOWER AT THE OPENING.

The market was weak at the start, with oils and steels leading the decline. Rails were irregular but off by a majority. Business in them was on a moderate scale. Baldwin was the only prominent equipment issue to open. This was true of Studebaker and motors. Initial changes were from fractions to more than two points. Recessions were the rule. Many issues that opened at its lowest price since 1918 and went still lower. Houston Oil and Stromberg sustained the most severe sale losses. The poor showing made by the Federal Reserve Bank System in last week's report was one reason given for the weakness. The combined reserve ratio was 42.2, against 43.5 a week before. New York reported 38.3, Boston 54.9 and Boston made the best showing in the country with a percentage of 55.1 against 56.2 a week ago. New York Clearing House statement was quite satisfactory, however. It showed an increase of $12,804,520 in surplus reserve. Reports of labor troubles and foreign exchange weakness were among other bearish influences.

One favorable report is in regard to transportation. It is said to have improved. The car shortage has decreased in some sections and the car movement been accelerated more or less in all. The gain has not been so great to be generally felt by business and individual complaints are as numerous as ever. More cars will be provided and a great deal of betterment work has been planned. But as it will take months to supply much new equipment and make rail extensions, a long time must intervene before freight shipping will be without just grievances. Since railroad wages were increased less unrest and more efficiency on the part of labor is discernible. The public has accepted rate advances with remarkable little protest. It is so used to ascending prices that if would be hard to cause surprise over the increased cost of anything. The Railway Age says: "Increases in railway operating efficiency have been effected so rapidly within recent weeks that the railways probably are now moving more traffic than they have ever moved before at this time of year."

CROPS REPORTED GOOD.

Crop reports continue to be favorable on the whole and the wheat crop in the Northwest is said to be better than it was last year, although yields are irregular in that section. There is a great complaint over car shortage. From Kansas City comes the statement that it is the greatest in history and that wheat elevators with capacity for from 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 bushels are holding less than 2,000,000. Corn is doing well and a Chicago house estimates that the crop will total 3,000,000,000 bushels and exceed the government figure by 87,000,000.

As to cotton, a good deal of the recent speculation in that commodity has been based upon the assumption that the present crop may be the second or third largest on record. It will be so large that Southern planters are threatening to withhold as much as possible from the market and to cut down their acreage by a third. The government report will be published this week Wednesday. According to private reports condition promises a yield of from 12,750,000 to 13,750,000 bales. At the end of July the government figured it would be 12,819,000.

WOOL MEN MORE HOPEFUL.

The most can be said about wool is that the trade view of the outlook is a little more hopeful. In some quarters a distinct improvement is looked for within a month. This based on increased inquiries from mills. But there is no disposition to continue mill operations to accumulate a stock of woolen goods against prospective buying. The future is too uncertain and production costs too great. Both in this country and in England manufacturers have shut down on a preferential course. The world has an immense supply of wool on hand. As to the situation abroad, when Harry M. Payne, a departmental manager for the American Woolen Company, returned from Europe last week, he said:

"England has a year's wool crop on hand and another coming shortly. It is a question just how long she can maintain the fixed price of wool, and continue to protect the grower. No one can speculate on the present market with so many uncertain factors."

Gold and Currency

The National Bank of Commerce states in its "Commerce Monthly" that on July 1 of this year the United States had $2,224,000,000 in gold as against $4,512,000,000 in notes, giving it a reserve of 49.5 per cent for its paper circulation, a ratio which far excelled that of any European country.

Lubricating Oil Shipments

The increase in this country's exports of lubricating oil is regarded as indicative of a world-wide resumption of industrial activity. For the fiscal year ended June 30 last such shipments totaled 328,891,130 gallons against 273,143,540 for the preceding twelve months.

NARROW RANGE TO BOSTON

Market Is Irregular During Morning and Very Quiet; Curb Leaders Weak

Prices were irregular on the Boston Exchange when the week began, but at the very outset the majority of changes were toward a higher level. Before the morning was over the situation was reversed and the majority of active stocks were off. But the movement was narrow in the extreme. Although United Shoe common advanced five points on one sale, and U. S. Smelting preferred by over two small transactions, Boot & Van Dorn rose sold at a new 1920 low. Shawmut Steamship receded a point and other forenoon changes were fractional.

Stocks to show small losses included Boston & Maine, New Haven, Copper Range, Davis Coal, Seneca and International Products.

Among fractionally higher issues were Quincy, Calumet & Hecla, United Shoe, National Leather, Libby and Highland.

CURB MARKET WEAK.

The Curb market had a weak beginning and was quite as quiet as it ordinarily is. Some of the issues at the opening or soon afterwards were Allied Oil, Eureka, Mutual, Incorporated Motor and Boston Oil Extension. Bagdad made a trifling gain. Leaders as to activity in early trading were Boston & Montana, Crystal and Eureka.

At the end of an hour Boston & Montana was up 5 cents at 90 cents, while Eureka was off 8 cents at 35 cents, Rex Oil 3 cents at 6 cents, Porcupine Premier 2 cents at 4 cents. Mutual had recovered its loss and Crystal was unchanged.

PROSPEROUS YEAR FOR BANKS IN BOSTON

The twelve months ended by June were a prosperous period for Boston national banks. They made more than high and credit operations on an unusual scale. Their net earnings before dividend and Federal tax payments totaled $9,181,412 as compared with $8,026,787 for the 1919 calendar year and $7,214,465 in 1918.

The News Bureau says that when applied to $40,000 average bank capitalization these profits amounted to 30.07 per cent, against 27.96 per cent, or the 12 months ended June 30, Dec 31, 1919 and 25.40 per cent in 1918. Based on the aggregate bank capital is 11.52 per cent., contrasted with 10.65 per cent. in 1919 and exactly 10 per cent. in 1918.

The group as a whole earned on total working capital 11.52 per cent., or slightly less than the same rate of 11.54 per cent. for the 1919 calendar year. On this basis the Boston trade banks did relatively better than the State unit came next with 13.62 per cent, Fourth National 12.87 per cent, First 12.14 per cent, the Merchants 11.32 per cent. The percentage earned on capital stock and combined funds for the twelve months follow:

RAILROADS TO SPEND $762,256,108 IN 1920

Southern roads will buy about 2,000 cars and Eastern roads not less than 13,000. Locomotive buying will call for the expenditure of $105,616,166 and that for passenger cars around $50,000,000.

General improvements will cost approximately $153,465,823 and other expenditures will be $23,012,772 for additions and betterments, $14,447,900 for yard tracks and sidings, $6,767,755 for signals and interlocking plants, $45,455,467 for shops, $12,447,900 for station facilities, $6,376,052 for extensions and branches.

W. W. Allen, president of the Boston & Montana Development Company, has received the following telegram from Manager John D. Pope: "Sampling on Hoosac Mountain shows values up to 1,500 ounces silver per ton."

Expect Lower Pig Iron

There is a great deal of trade uncertainty as to what price tend will develop for pig iron and consumers are holding off orders as long as possible, expecting lower prices. Some pig iron now takes the same view that there is room for a decrease of pig iron dropping several dollars before the present level. Even now there are signs that we have passed the crest of the general price level. Rather than pay the present five cents a pound is now selling for thirty cents a pound, silk has dropped greater than 50 per cent with much raw wool for the first time in twenty-five years made from a clean cotton. When basic materials like these show a decline, it is only reasonable to suppose that pig iron will do the same."

Oil Items

A Montana report states that the Mid-Northern Oil Co. has drilled in an offset to the Pauly Oil Corporation gusher in the Cat Creek field of Montana. This well is reported to be flowing and showing 2,500 barrels an hour. The company owns a 40 per cent. interest in the gusher, which produced 1,000 barrels a day for a week before it was shut down.

The Midwest Refining Co. has contracted with the Shipping Board for the delivery of 1,000,000 barrels of crude oil during the fifteen months commencing July 1, 1920, and ending September 30, 1921, at the rate of 75,000 barrels per day at San Francisco, as announced by Harry F. Sinclair, president of the Midwest Company. About 140,000 barrels of Wyoming crude oil from the government's Salt Creek field.

The deepest wildcat test for oil in Texas is claimed for a well now being put down by Ryan Petroleum Corporation of the Ryan Petroleum Corporation of the Ryan Petroleum Corporation of the

And So Our Young Veterans of the World War Did Not Want a Bonus, Eh?

In the Light of Last Friday's Votes at Legion Conventions in New Hampshire and Massachusetts Certain New England Congressmen Will Have to Find Some Other Excuse for Opposing a Measure of Simple Justice—Pass the Bonus Bill!

Of course you read the news from Springfield.

"By unanimous vote," the Republican says, "the four-fold bonus for veterans of the World War was approved by the Massachusetts Department of the American Legion."

And then you saw the dispatch from Winnipesaukee.

"Frank J. Abbott, adjutant of the New Hampshire Department, telegraphed that the New Hampshire Legion men had also endorsed the bonus proposition. Wild applause greeted this announcement."

The Boston American looks upon the vote at Springfield and the vote at the Weirs as a victory for this newspaper AND ITS READERS. In season and out of season, from the very beginning of the homeward rush of our men from France, the Hearst newspapers throughout the country have championed the bonus. Six million readers of these newspapers signed a petition for the enactment of the Bonus bill into law.

Scores of Representatives in Congress who voted against the Bonus bill have "explained" their hostility by saying that the "soldiers do not want a bonus." Two New Hampshire Congressmen offered this defence to last week's Legion convention. If any New England Congressman thought six months ago that the bonus was not wanted, he knows the truth now.

The Bonus bill was NOT a proposal of charity, but a MEASURE OF SIMPLE JUSTICE.

The six million citizens who signed the unprecedented petition of the Hearst newspapers for its enactment unquestionably voiced the will of a loyal and grateful people.

The people wanted their protectors given a generous start back into civil life.

And—take notice, Congressmen—the American people have no intent to default on their promises!

Incomes and Railroads

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

According to government statistics, there are only two men in the United States with incomes exceeding three million dollars a year. This means, as any one of a hundred men in Wall Street can testify, that there are a good many men in America possessing the services of very expert accountants when it comes to figuring income tax. Any newspaper man can name twenty men that would not sell out on a three-million-a-year basis.

The same parties tell you that a majority of the one hundred millions that live in the United States have incomes less than two thousand dollars a year. Nevertheless, among them they will have to find a good deal of money to run their government. For the month of September alone, for instance, the cost of government goes up some nine hundred million dollars. This includes six hundred millions that the government must give to the railroads, having guaranteed them against loss for six months after handing them back to their private owners.

Rather a comfortable arrangement for the private owners, wasn't it? The government took the railroads, rebuilt them, refinanced them, added one hundred and fifty thousand freight cars and four thousand locomotives to the equipment. The new equipment was sold to the private owners for a great deal less than it would cost to build now, with ten years in which to pay.

Having had under government management full dividends, the highest they ever earned, the private owners were guaranteed against loss for the first six months after the roads were restored to private management, and the other day rates were raised to increase the railroads' income by at least fifteen hundred millions a year—you to pay the bill in higher freight and higher passenger rates.

WHAT do you think is the real government of this country?

Do you think it is made up of ordinary little men that vote, or do you think that it is made up of intelligently organized dollars that own the railroads?

Poor Tactics for This Year

Any candidate who thinks that the majority of the American people are in favor of booze selling is badly mistaken.

Any candidate who thinks he can be wet in one State and dry in another and get away with it is a simpleton.

Any candidate who is for the League of Nations in one breath and against it in another breath will be elected to stay home.

Any candidate who wears an administration collar will not warm the presidential chair.

Pussyfooting and fence-straddling will not get enough votes to wad a shotgun.

Not this year.

The people are against booze at home and against entangling alliances abroad.

A sober America for sober Americans—that is the will of the American people, and they will write it that way in their ballots.

See if they don't.

New Self-Determination Idea

Mr. Franklin Roosevelt told an audience the other day that until his nomination he himself had been running the affairs of two countries and could have cast their votes in the League of Nations as he pleased.

We would very much like to know where Mr. Roosevelt got his authority to run two other countries. And we would also be pleased to know whether that is the present administration's idea of democracy and self-determination for small nations.

Mr. Roosevelt added that he wrote the new constitution of Hayti himself, and, of course, the United States marine forces, which seized and now hold Hayti without any warrant of the Congress or any pretence of a declaration of war by the Congress, are there to enforce Mr. Roosevelt's constitution.

When the next Congress assembles we trust that it will have a membership American enough and law-respecting enough to start the machinery of impeachment against public officials who make a brag of the fact that they have violated the Constitution and contemptuously disregarded the delegated powers and rightful authority of the Congress itself.

More Truth Than Poetry

Mr. Hot-and-Cold

By S. E. KISER

THE man who doesn't know what he wants
Is a mighty hard man to please;
One day his wish is for sylvan haunts,
The next he would roam the seas;
Today he may seem to make up his mind,
Tomorrow he'll be in doubt,
And soon or late you will probably find
That he's finally down and out.

THE man who yesterday wanted fame,
But would rather have wealth today,
Wins little at any kind of a game
That he ever attempts to play,
And the boy who never can quite decide
Whether Alice or Ruth's the one
Will hardly be happy or satisfied
When the preacher has said, "Tis done!"

THE man who thinks that he will or won't,
And then that he won't or will,
Can at last be numbered with those who don't,
And will doubtless be doubtful still;
For the men who do are the men who learn
To proceed when a choice is made,
Instead of halting at every turn,
By a later opinion swayed.

THE man whose answer today is yes,
And tomorrow will answer no,
Complains that effort is profitless,
And is likely to find it so.
There's always a spectre, loose-jawed and gaunt,
That sits on the doubter's knees,
And the men who never know what they want
Are mighty hard men to please.

Letters to the Editor

To Avoid Confusion

Editor Boston American:

It is not amiss (especially at the present time) to call attention to the confusion and disorder at the consolidated ticket offices at Franklin and Arch streets. Said condition is brought about by not having rails installed, whereby each individual would secure their proper rights; that is, the first arriving would have their proper place in line. The poor clerks are blameless, inasmuch as they do not know who arrived first or last. It surely would be a blessing if the powers that be would act on this suggestion. SINE QUA NON.

Article X.

Editor Boston American:

Your sterling work in exposing the infamous British-Wilson League of Nations merits the warm praise of all true Americans. More power to you.

There is one feature of the infamous league that is now dawning on all friends of Ireland. Under Article 10 every branch of the Friends of Irish Freedom in the United States will be forced to disband. Under the infamous league every member of a branch could be arrested and prosecuted for conspiracy. No friend of Ireland in the United States could send a five-cent piece nor even a letter of encouragement to aid the people of Erin in their fight for freedom. Smash the British-Wilson League of Nations!

DANIEL W. McCARTHY,
Director of Publicity, John McBride Branch, Friends of Irish Freedom.

On Being An Audience

Unless you can sing and get paid for it; unless you can write and the magazines clamor for your work; unless you can paint and your pictures are hung in the salons, be content to be an audience. The power to be interested in others is a rare gift. If you do not have it, develop it. Let your spee h be the punctuation of other men's discourse. But listen with sympath and understanding. It is one of the secrets of fascination in woman and of success in man.—David Wark Griffith in September Hearst's.

By K. C. B.

HE'S VERY large.
AND VERY tough.
AND THE job he has.
GETS HIM very dirty.
AND HE likes it.
AND IF little boys.
OR LITTLE girls.
COME TO the door.
THAT LOOKS in.
TO WHERE he works.
HE HOLLERS at them.
AND DRIVES them off.
AND ALTOGETHER.
HE'S A rough person.
AND DISAGREEABLE.
AND LIKES to fight.
AND HE'S married.
AND IF I was his wife.
I'D SELL him.
OR RAFFLE him off.
AND ANYWAY.
FOR SEVERAL mornings.
A FELLOW workman.
SAW HIM go.
TO A hole in a fence.
AROUND A place.
THAT IS all piled up.
WITH A lot of lumber.
FROM A torn down house.
AND THE workman watched him.
AND HE'D kneel down.
AND TAKE something.
FROM OUT of his pocket.
AND PUT his hand.
THROUGH THE hole in the fence.
AND STAY there.
FOR SEVERAL minutes.
AND THEN get up.
AND LOOK around.
AND PUT something.
THAT LOOKED like a bottle.
BACK IN his pocket.
AND GO away.
AND THE fellow workman.
WAS VERY curious.
AND PAID a visit.
TO THE hole in the fence.
AND THERE was a saucer.
THAT HAD held milk.
AND A cat came out.
FROM UNDER the lumber.
AND PURRED.
AND THE next morning.
THE FELLOW workman.
TOLD ALL about it.
AND THE big fellow.
SLAPPED HIS face.
AND WARNED him.
TO MIND his own business.

I THANK you.

TRAGEDY OF LOVE WITH BITTER END

By Beatrice Fairfax

"RAIN on the windows, creaking doors,
With blasts that bosom the green,
And I am here, and you are there,
And a hundred miles between!

"Oh, were it but the weather, dear;
Oh, were it but the miles
That summed up all our severance,
There might be room for smiles.

"But that thwart thing betwixt us twain,
Which nothing cleaves or clears,
Is more than distance, Dear, or rain,
And longer than the years!"
—THOMAS HARDY.

THE poet has a way of indicating exquisitely what you and I take long paragraphs to say. One word suffices to hint at deep meanings and to set us groping for the key in our own souls by which we may interpret the message of song.

Who hasn't sat in the same room with someone she loved, longing to say a word that should bridge a gap of estrangement, knowing bitterly all the while that anything she said would be wrong—would serve only to make matters worse? Who hasn't watched love drift out of his life because he lacked the magic to make clear the something which would bring him into sympathy with the one he loved?

Dull Tasks

Who hasn't actually found that in the close communion of everyday life a love which is both tender and true sometimes yields to the strain of the dull little tasks which make up everyday life?

Who hasn't found himself inevitably saying the wrong thing or doing the wrong thing every time he made a move, when all the while he longed to please someone and stood ready to make any sacrifice so only he could bring happiness into the life of a beloved?

We all blunder and stumble and antagonize and annoy when we fairly ache to please. We all find ourselves irritated to the point of exasperation when we don't want to let nerves come between us and someone who is, as we know, trying to make us happy.

Sets Up Barriers

Human nature is contrary and annoying. It sets up barriers where we desire only to find the walls down and perfect community of soul with soul.

"He doesn't understand me!" whimpers the woman. "He simply won't take the trouble to please me. It would be so easy if he'd only give me what I want instead of what he thinks I ought to have."

"I can't understand her," says the man. "I do everything to please her. But nothing I do is right. And she never even tries to fit in with my scheme of things."

That's life—and one of life's most constantly recurring tragedies. That's human nature and one of its limitations.

I wish that every couple on the verge of the grim thing known as "separation" might read Thomas Hardy's verses—and reconsider.

NEVER MIND THE CLOCK

Until you feel yourself a part of the organization you are not going to become an important and valued employe of your firm.

You are not going to get real enjoyment out of work until you take pride in every effort of yours to bring good results for the firm.

You are not going to progress or be contented until every advancement which your firm makes arouses a feeling of pride within you—the feeling that you have been an important cog in the wheel.

Don't go to your place of business feeling that it is merely another day's grind before you.

Don't start your work with a frown and a dissatisfied feeling—smile and be happy.

Don't watch the clock and think how many hours it is till you can quit.

Forget about time and get interested in what you are doing.

You will be surprised at how much more quickly the time will go when you settle down to do an honest day's work for honest wages because you are honestly glad to build up the standing of your firm.

Don't be afraid of doing too much, but buckle in and work as if the business were yours, and see how much better you will feel when you get home at night.

DISCLOSES SECRET OF COLOR AND LIGHT

By Garrett P. Serviss

"I assume from an article of yours that things would be invisible if it were not for ether vibrations impinging both on them and on the eye, or in other words that color and visibility are not intrinsic qualities of the things we see. Will you please explain what white light is? Is it possible to make true white light by placing a substance which transmits only white rays between a source of yellow light and the eye?—E. M. F."

BEFORE saying what "white" light is we should define light itself without regard to color. Light, then, is an impression or an effect produced upon the optic nerves by something which scientific men have long believed to consist of minute waves or vibrations in a hypothetical medium of boundless extent, called the ether.

These waves may reach the eye either direct from the source in some shining body or substance, or they may come to the eye by reflection from an object which is not itself a source of such waves.

How Light Is Given

It is evident that things can be visible only in case they give forth light of their own or else reflect light impinging upon them from some other source. It is equally evident that nothing would be visible if there were no eyes or optic nerves to receive the impressions made by the waves.

Now, pure white light is the product of the combination of all the different waves. If some, but not all, are combined the result is not white, but a color.

Making White Light

You ask if it is possible "to make true white light by placing a substance which transmits only white rays between a source of yellow light and the eye." But a substance which transmitted "only white light" would certainly not transmit yellow light, and if the yellow light was monochromatic, i. e., consisting of waves producing only yellow light, you could not change its color by any filtering process, for there would be nothing to filter out. But if it was not a pure spectrum yellow, but a compound, you might alter the color (while diminishing the total luminosity) by screening off some of its waves.

It would appear that not in every world or solar system is white light the standard, as with us. There are in the universe suns that look to us red, blue, green, yellow, orange and other hues. A world lighted by such a sun would have a color scheme very different from that to which we are accustomed.
